Shoving a bomb up the defector's arse then detonating it.

Trust us, after we implemented this, the defection rate went down to a measly 2%.

Jaywalking.

Extended time in prison, the broken out inmates won't be punished and the person who broke them out will be rehabilitated and incentivised not to do so again.

Legacy moral code: public indecency fine of 25k or 6 months in jail.

Attacking a religious building (does it have a different law from normal property damage and victim compensation law?)

Generally the same penalty for whatever offence committed whether its a religious building or not. So depending on the definition of "attacking", we could have criminal damage, normally community service plus compensation, reckless endangerment of life for which three dozen lashes would be a typical sentence, assault if anyone is hurt which would again be a flogging or if someone is killed by your attack then death by hanging.

There is one exception: if your attack is calculated to especially outrage a religious community, this is an aggravating factor and you can expect an additional dozen lashes. Publicly desecrating a sacred text could be an example of this.
