Man decides to keep the bird, feeding it everyday. With this bird on his side, he no longer has to worry about the NS users trying to kill him all the time. Now, he can live a long and happy life... until the poster below the user Dantek does something to him and the bird.

Man and His Bird due to NS user's presence, are forced to recruit another ally. So they naturally recruit forum hamster.

Just imagine a Neutral underground dictatorship who likes to trade. There you got Takantionstan. Also Rigel pact member

Otherwise give me time.

Unbeknownst to both Bird and Forum Hamster, they had just killed a juvenile Appalachian Titan Bee, which can grow up to a staggering 48 centimeters in length, and are more than capable of paralyzing prey with it's stinger in less than 8 seconds. Titan bees can sense if a youngling is dead, and after the two had murdered said youngling, the swarm of giant, vengeful and angry bees quickly overwhelms them.

A 'Infanterie Ficker' tank burns the bee's to death before they can reach them. Forum Hamster and Bird quickly run away before they get caught in the flames or get run over on accident.

These Bees are hellish and tame the fire like an old friend, manipulating the flames to use them against the Bird and the Forum Hamster, however, the pair had already run enough and created a good distance between them and the flaming bees of hell itself.

However, Bird and Forum Hamster ended up finding themselves in a dead end, trapped with no way out to escape then the gigantic firebending bees cornered them..

But in the middle of the two conflicting groups, the inevitable, immeasurable, inexorable and monstrous, Count Owen Jimmothy Cena, the #046 of the Celica's Cure Gardens appears to break up the fight, vaporizing the bees that refused to reach peace, with their own fire.

Just after that, he turns his gaze to the Bird and the Forum Hamster, hoping for their peaceful cooperation.

Greg Abbott tells his story of the attempt at his life as well as his past exploits in Mexico in intricate detail to the Austin Chronicle, and he becomes quite well known in the southwestern US in T783563, and his stories, although not well known, was quickly heard of by people the world over. Only five months after making his publication, Greg Abbott disappears under mysterious circumstances, his home clearly shows the signs of a break-in and a struggle, yet nobody had heard a sound at the time of his disappearance. He remains missing to this day, his captor or potential captors are never found, and his disappearance remains unsolved as of yet.

Our new man, #57681, 29 years of age, first came to the SPRC's attention, after he experienced a missing time event, where he fell asleep for what felt like 2 hours, only to wake up 3 days later, way longer than any of his previous experiences. In his phone call with the Commission, he explained that he had a dream of himself wandering around a desolate city for what seemed like months, with "things" stalking him around every corner. The Commission recommends that #57681 not leave his residence for 5 days, while they figure the situation out.

#57681 experiences yet another time dilation, this time when he unwittingly took a nap for what must've felt like 6 hours, he then learned that he he was out cold for 3 days.

#57681, after some investigation, discovered that his memories were wiped of his past, his last memory was of waking up in a test chamber. #57681 however does have a strange Scottish accent.
