Learned that the princess Euphrosyne is illiterate and uneducated because all the tutors are scared of either accidentally teaching her witchcraft from a book or just of being accused of teaching her witchcraft. So she's never read a book in her life and probably has never been read to. You'd think someone would at least try reading scriptures at her on the grounds that it might annoy or cleanse or smite her supposed demon half, but I guess the way folks are treating the princess isn't a rational decision, after all.

In Liagolas, the term "Liagoslian" doesn't exactly work in the traditional sense. In Liagolas there is only Liagolas, there is no self, there is no individual, there is no you. But of course this doesn't mean it functions through some psionic being or hive entity, the choice to destroy the self, ironically, is a choice made by the individual. Self-subsumation sees an individual relinquish the differentiation between itself and Liagolas in nearly every way barring the material, it is the melding of the concept of the self into the concept of Liagolas until the former is no more. The whole process is hardly political. There are no ideals of a "better world" and to consume more and more individuals is not reason in of itself. Liagolas is very much a living "being" if one somewhat abstract and to sustain itself it must feed.

Synne's history is...quite complicated to say the least, it all started when several businessmen decided to flee the USA and into their little tadpole island somewhere in the Atlantic, led by our favorite Mr Synne, the guy who needs more coffee than planes, then it goes downhill from there, Soviet destroyers veer off into Synnia, Nukes start going "Empty Quiver", and much much more things that would rock the Synnian nation's history as a whole, which is all good and fun.

the junta leader, Townes, got his inspiration for his laser program from watching star wars. Prior to his position in office, he staged a coup against then president buford, launching an offensive on the white house, before deposing the president and assuming power.

AAN: Townes is... let's just say a pioneer in the realm of directed-energy weaponry. Ever since his childhood the man has been enthralled by the idea of turning enemy infantry to ash and melting through heavy armor with beams and bolts of light. He even dropped out of academia in 2010 to get back to where he felt like he belonged, the battlefield. Screw learning more about lasers, the man already knew enough, time to properly see them in action! Townes would see a stunning victory in Operation Bloodhound as the use of Laser Crusader armored vehicles and ambush tactics would pulverize GLA forces. These two aspects of Townes's strategy would come in particularly useful in the 2021 Special Forces Coup as a hidden Laser Crusader in conjunction with numerous ambush forces would quickly overwhelm White House defenses with Townes himself later supplanting Buford as POTUS. The laser programmes of Townes would shape the modern US armed forces with laser rifles, laser cruisers, and even a bloody laser battleship in-use.

AN: Homo Antithesis is a type of presumably hominid creature with a very similar genetic makeup to that of humans. This grants them the same thinking, communicating, and problem-solving capability of humans, but what really matters are the differences. Homo Antithesis are completely covered in strands of long hair and are far larger in general than an average human yet still retain a relatively small mass for their size. Perhaps the most important differentiating characteristic thought would be their superhuman or perhaps outright magical strength. All these aspects would culminate in a species capable of hunting down humans for sport, this resulting in the human population being cut down to nearly a fourth.

They follow Abrahamic religions as their majority faith; no surprise there. Christianity is presumably the most adhered to religion in Svenska with maybe a sizable minority of Jews. Muslims might also have a presence in the empire through an immigrant community. I don't know why they feel the need to explain what the three religions are to us.

Their leader, the Liagolas, is considered to be never changing, at least in the understanding of a non-hivemind individual (me!). When a Liagolas "dies", a new one is put in this seat without much ceremony, and the Liagolas merely "changes its form" in the eyes of the Dominion, even though said Liagolas is a different person (as seen in a non-hivemind sense) altogether.

Lombardi fleeing from Patagonia during the events of 1976 opens the way for more radical rightists and fascists to take over central Patagonia. The Troika's most influential leader, Radek, is an associate of Lombardi in the NO and is even more radical than him.

The former, more authoritarian government banned all non-prescription drugs, leading to the suppression of native tribes who used those substances. After the revolution which changed the government and economy into libertarian market socialism, all drugs were legalized. Drugs such as cannabis and various hallucinogens/psychedelics are grown and sold in the communes.
