Cars are illegal, the car would be seized by the state and scrapped for parts while the driver would be detained and interrogated about how the driver acquired the car and crossed a border with it before an appropriate punishment is determined.

if they do not kill them but it was bad enough to have law enforcement called they would be sent to jail for a couple years for attempted murder but if they did murder them than probably a life sentence or 50 years maybe

Forced to return painting and up to half-value extra in punitive damages. Revocation of motor vehicle licenses permanently. Assuming that it was just taken while in a public space with no other crimes committed, a few months in prison. Any other crimes committed in the act (armed robbery, criminal trespass, etc) will be punished separately.
