Add this song to your list too. ☐ And if you have any gothic/black/death/doom suggestions for me, feel free to mention it.

I haven't really listened to them yet, but Deafheaven is black metal mixed with things like post-metal and I think their most recent post-rock more then post-metal, but they might be worth you giving a try to. At least their first album. Though I think their new one is the most highly praised I'm just not sure if you'd like it or not.

Wikipedia says Neurosis has some doom metal but I looked through all of their albums on there and none said it was doom metal.....I haven't listened to them yet so I can't really pick out specifics for you. There's a lot of sludge metal in their music apparently though.

The majority of my metal bands seem to either be post-metal or sludge metal for some reason ☐ Though a lot I haven't gone through yet. I didn't even specifically search out those kinds of bands, either.

I can maybe try sharing various other things with you later, though, but at least I gave you some possible options.

You might like this band called Moonsorrow. They're a really good Finnish folk-metalish band. This is one of their better songs.

I mean, we can actually create a mathematical definition for evolution in terms of the evolutionary algorithm and then write code to deal with abstract instances of evolution, which basically equates to mathematical proof that evolution works. All that remains is to show that biological systems replicate in such a way as to satisfy the minimal criteria required for evolution to apply to them, something which has already been adequately shown time and again. At this point, we've pretty much proven that not only can evolution happen, it pretty much must happen since it's basically impossible to prevent it from happening.
