While I wouldn't live in Leskya by choice in today's world, thinking about it, in Leskya's setting where the world has been racked by social collapse and climate change, Leskya's probably one of the best places to live. Directly democratic, strong sense of community, and self-sustaining communes. It'd be a hard life, but a safe and secure life, which is better than what a lot of the rest of the world might be going through. ^^;

Not a good outlook here, the first thing I see when I look at their nation is "Scenic mountain valleys flood with recent urban developments." Along with a mix of reasonable mix of personal and political freedoms the country seems to look stable on the outside but I have a feeling the people of the nation are starving and poor.

Go eat a snickerdoodle

No, it seems that whites are generally discriminated against in AN

My nation - which is pretty much just a unified Korea with some extra territory - represents my real views, as does pretty much anything I say on the forums. NS stats only broadly representative. Feel free to call me Q&K, Quartia, or any other nickname.

Depends.

I want to be a badass immortal bro with a fucking destroyer's worth of firepower packed into a single aircraft servin' my time for the Man, blaring Zero while doing some sick flips in a Xiphos, sure. ~~synne why you sold guns to the people my mers are going to have to fight please no~~ Synne Industries' work culture, though, is pretty shit, and I wouldn't want to live in that for long. Sure, I could be awesome, but I'd also have to deal with the grind and immortality means that I'm more likely to end up blowing my brains out in two hundred years than die satisfied in eighty.

I sure as hell wouldn't want to live in the RSI, just because chances are I'd be a grunt working my ass off in some dank corner of a Providence worshipping the swirly-dirty flashlight and dying a horrid death because I stepped out from my watchtower to take a piss and got obliterated because I let it fall on the wrong patch of ground and the ship thought I was attacking it rather than a New God. The population figures given mean that such grunts probably take up near five nines' worth of the RSI's total population, so chances of the latter are slim. Rather I'd be the literal definition of a replaceable cog in a machine, as opposed to only partially literally one if I were to live in Synne.

So if I were to be in an upper-level position? Yeah, definitely. Anyone else? Hell to the fucking no.

Pretty decent country but tax rate is too high. I would still give it a try and live in the country. See if it goes well.
