title is much longer but it's a pain to type

we, unlike the bourgeoisie, have nothing to lose and therefore our expression will be the only honest one, our words will be the only challenging ones and our art will be the one revolutionary expression. We need new noise and new voices and new canvases to become something more than the last poets of a useless generation.

Epic fkin' track, that. Heard it on the radio many a year ago, and it took me a long-ass time to figure out who it was. I was mildly disappointed that all of their music isn't in a similar vein, but I do still like that whole album

Long Distance Calling - Black Paper Planes

(Good stuff, Cor, cheers :-)

This random guy I keep inboxing music back and forth to on Spotify (who I found because he talked about liking my playlists) sent me it. We've thrown a varying amount of music back and forth. I kinda just sent him like, 4 trip-hop bands back, though...

I still need to listen to more of Long Distance Calling. Getting sidetracked and all.

Sounds like a plan.

Listening to more of the Hanna Soundtrack, which I don't think I need to post repeatedly that I am listening to.

All that remains is to show that biological systems replicate in such a way as to satisfy the minimal criteria required for evolution to apply to them, something which has already been adequately shown time and again. At this point, we've pretty much proven that not only can evolution happen, it pretty much must happen since it's basically impossible to prevent it from happening.

Queen- Sheer Heart Attack

I actually like this metal song, though the noises in the end are kinda irritating.

To be fair, it's one of the earliest songs of the genre that would become metal that can be found. Super fast guitar playing really heavy with epic fast guitar solos and frankly just putting everything at tempo say..300 bpm (ok, I'm exaggerating)? No one had really done it before when queen wrote the song in 1974.

It's not metal. Black Sabbath (formed in '69) is the earliest metal, and if you listened to them, they're much different from that. Also, metal doesn't need to be fast; Black Sabbath's early work influence the Doom Metal genre, which is known for it's very slow tempos. Drone and sludge are also very slow.
