He types in "The Backrooms" and clips through the image, into the backrooms. From there he attempts to get out but realises it's just an image of the backrooms and if he goes any further than the image can see, he falls out of the PC and the image. He learnt this the hard way but luckily he gets out into the real world, but he is, unfortunately, small. As tiny as an ant.

Anyways, Man kindly asks the producers to not air the episode with him in it.

The producers don't air the episode.

Man eats some popcorn (the Hofstadter kind) and ends up in World War 2, on Aila's aircraft.

Date: 7/19/1940

Aila: The first battle of Berlin begins now! *fires a missile at the Reichstag* Wait, where did you come from?
Man leaves the aircraft with a parachute, and eventually ends up in the Stralsund campaign. Fierce urban combat ensues, with several bombing raids being conducted by Polish, Danish and Swedish aircraft. By the start of August, 15,000 soldiers have been killed and much of the city is under Allied control.

Suddenly, a dark presence arises from the ruins of the government building: Endlösungkanzer 1: Pommern. It is a weird amalgamation of weapons and spirits; Jews and Romani around the entire world get severe headaches randomly. It fires bullets and bombs at all living things in its path, regardless of origin.

Aila: Is this karma for the Nazis or one of their attempts to control the world? *fires another missile at ELK 1, a perfect impact for 752830 damage*

Man, who isn't prepared for such situations, frantically finds a way to go back to normalcy, and he eventually finds a C204 Time Displacement Unit. Using said TDU, he gets transported to the year 2000, where he finds his friend, who had traveled back in time from 2036 and into that 2000, and who also served in the 177th Temporal Recon Unit, John Titor.

Date: November 2, 2000

After some talks, Man explains to Titor how he keeps getting randomly dragged into Aila's situations, and eventually, Titor says that the C204 TDU has a feature that would shield a person from being forcefully transported to another timeline by a natural or man-made temporal phenomenon, but that it would drain the TDU's power significantly. Man then informs Titor that Aila had made several oblique references pertaining to a Nazi time machine, and asks how he makes of it, his reaction seemed somewhat troubled, and so he urges man to stay in the house he is temporarily staying in for a while, to keep Man from encountering odd things on an almost daily basis.

Despite Titor's best efforts, Man encounters Oddball (a progeny of The Orb of Infinity (which looks surprisingly like a black number 8 billiard ball on its side), and the Little Black Cube of Darkness (which looks unsurprisingly like a little black cube of darkness from some horrific fan-fic dimension), inside man's house through means unknown and floating in front of him, asks, "What is your designation?"

Man eventually comes to his senses and attempts to swim back to the surface, surprisingly, this effort was successful. After regaining his bearings for a moment, he drives back to Titor's home and locks himself in the spare bedroom of his house, not forgetting to close the blinds of the bedroom's windows.
