OK so this post was a bit short (I was on my phone when I made it, sue me) but I wanna expand it a bit more to explain to you why your constant complaining about the slave threads is so tiring (and not just because 'you keep going on and on about it'):
- You're complaining about something that is perfectly OK to do. Even if the threads are low-effort, there is absolutely nothing in the site rules or whatever that says that RPing slave markets or having slaves or whatever is forbidden.

You're allowed to roleplay your nation as being 'bad' and engaging in practices the majority of people would regard as being evil (so long as it falls within the PG-13 guidelines for the site). This is not a game where you can only RP as some goody-two-shoes nation or whatever, you can be evil, you can commit genocides, you can have slaves, you can do all that. Other than the threads not being high-quality (and honestly most RP threads on this site aren't that high quality, let's be perfectly honest here), there is nothing wrong with threads like that. As I said earlier, there's not even that many of them and you're acting like they're taking over the boards.

- Second, you keep conflating how these people roleplay with their RL views. Let me put it as simply as possible: this is a game, it's all pretend. Are there people who have their nation representative of their RL views? Certainly, but to expand that to thinking that every nation represents the person behind the account's real life views is, quite frankly, idiotic. If I made a new nation that was some brutal dictatorship with racial supremacist policies that considered the lesser races as only good for slave labour and unethical human experimentation, does that mean I actually support that shit in real life? Of course not, it's all just part of the story I would want to tell with that nation.

For some reason, some of the answers of that thread reminds me of the excuses of the anti-pony states (especially the delusion thing) Deja-vu?

I get why a decent number of folks don't want to RP with pony, furry, or even nations in an MT setting. It can be pretty jarring for immersion when you have sapient ponies with flank-mounted canons cantor up, and I say that as a horse girl extraordinaire.

What if ponies just want to come over for tea? There is not only war. Seriously, warnings in OPs are pretty much a must if you don't want certain players in your realistic RP. Rather, I would get mad at those who leave RP open to all, but if they attract too many pony / furry nations they start getting vague, perhaps even abandoning the thread. Although I never understood why they exclude non-human characters but humanoid ones don't. Or nations that are great empires and enjoy a vast territory and maybe yours also has a large territory, so much so that it even shares some territory. For example as if you were the Oceania of "1984" (which includes the Americas, Australia, and Great Britain) and one day I would declare war on the British Empire. How would you justify this? The only solution for nations like mine is either to wait for some "similar" nation willing to RP together or to find someone they don't care about realism and wants to role-play just to do something fun, regardless of who gets into it.

If we exclude unicorns that can use magic (as Soviet Progonya said), the answers are only two:

Magnetic hooves; that is, ignore any notion of physics. Ponies can take up arms because yes.

Are they pack animals? Then they will wear everything! What? Did you think that a more "realistic" solution had not been thought of?

I soooooo wanted to do the "You wanna see 'em do a neat trick?" bit. 🤪

Godulan Puppet #2, RPing as technologically advanced tribal society founded by mongols and vikings (and later with multiple other Asian and Native American cultures) motivated by an intrinsic devotion to the spirit of competition. They'll walk softly, talk softly, and make soothing noises as they stab you in the back and take your stuff... unless you're another Caleshan, whereupon they'll only stab you in the back figuratively!

I do think a lot of the problem and ugliness of slavery RPs emerges when you get very overt racism and misogyny, which, sadly, isn't that uncommon. I don't think it's really out of bounds to chastise a poster who keeps pumping out what looks like the beginnings of a very dicey erotica in the guise of an RP about the slave trade or marriage. Since that is actually against site rules and pretty questionable in general.
