The City-State of Bunker Hill is the location of one of the Commonwealth's most brutal battles. This is a direct reference to the battle of Bunker of Hill, where the Continental Army was defeated by the British, but had managed to cause enough of a large casualty to them, they were forced to abandon the area (although, it mainly occurred at Breed's Hill).

Most of their regional leaders adheres to some variations of the socialist market economy. Also, there are some interesting political glossaries such as Songism, Morgenism, and Salaism which are the political beliefs of their many leaders.

Songism, Morgenism, and Salaism aren't necessarily "political ideologies", they are more or less a short descriptor of the types of governance between the current Chairwoman, Song Liyuan, and former Chairs Vladimir Salas and Dzhennifer Morgen. //skip//

An Ancient God from a time that predates the "Dark Age", Typhon, had no prophecy telling of his arrival, which is abnormal compared to the other supernatural beings. If there was a prophecy of Typhon's rise, they were apparently never recorded. As He did not fill out all Godly Incursion checklists that usually followed his kinds arrival to assert dominance. The seas did not boil, psychics were not driven mad, the skies did not rain blood, no portals from another world began opening, he didn't even black out the sun. No allusions to divinity or unholy supremacy. No secret cults revealing themselves through out government institutions and usurping control from the people.

AN:

Despite it's size, their nation (during its monarchist phase) never fell to Feudalism. Due to this, the peasantry remained largely a class of free farmers throughout most of Leskyan history with slavery being an uncommon practice and the small amount they did have was either withered away by the spread of Christianity or due to the difficulty of obtaining slaves.

The State owns around 15 companies that were the most important to their regions; the companies which aren't related to media/regional news outlets mostly tend to be focused on strategic sectors like energy (be it nuclear or fossil-fuel based) , heavy industry and also scientific R&D.
