About F7, I mean the hot take is that the true implicit purpose of F7 is to show off your work to people. As a wise blacklist hunter once said, "a collector has two things: a collection, and friends to watch them brag".

This is also why summaries with one-liner or one-word responses are frowned upon deeply. People want to show off their work and see what people think. The people who only look at their name, sig, flag and maybe their main nation page go against that in the lowest effort way possible that tells the person being responded to that this person doesn't care enough to read their work.

That's also why people can be...hostile. Or defensive.

However, some smaller topics such as most of the AN and two AN topics, even though some stat-users work hard to make their stats appealing enough for livelihood, one-word responses are pretty common. I did actually get called a low-effort poster in "Favorite Thing in ANs Sig" once though...I just chose the favorite line in their sig and followed up with three words, wasn't enough for them...did I do anything wrong there?

Nah lol, that thread will be low-effort regardless of what you post. It's quick and a simple question. You don't need to type up a five-paragraph essay fellingating the thing in someone else's sig you liked.

F7 seems to be effectively the only place in which you can share your work with others and get some feedback for your work. Like, elsewhere it isn't quite as easy to make other people read your work and say stuff about them, but here in F7 you can get some more direct responses about what people think about your work. It's one of the things that helps me stay here, getting some feedback on my work and seeing how my lore affects the responses of people when talking about my nation.

In all seriousness, yeah. I'd participate in General threads more but some of the people there have "interesting" viewpoints and most of the active threads are pretty damn boring.

people love to say that 'nationstates general is the containment board' and yet nsg was one of the first ever boards on these forums

perhaps it is the other boards that are the containment boards instead

Here's a cliché or at least something I did in my canon. Between 1947-1991 The Jamesian Republic which is basically the United States and its version of the Soviet Union which was if the nation was democratic socialist engaged in a period of friendly competition economically and technologically with a Space Race. Did anyone else do that or is just me?

Never heard of him.

Also is it a cliché to call complete nazbol nations or straight-up awful creations "fascist" despite neither having any actual core traits of a true fascist gov't?

Like, ergo, "Jigglystan" having high patriotism, garbage economy, capitalism, devolution, open borders (both ways)... But their factbooks just refer to the most racist drivel known to man. And everyone on NS seems to collectively agree that they are fascist only because of their generally unlikable nature.

VERY annoying for a nation that tries to run good NS stats like mine.

You skim over an issue, and the button seems innocuous enough, but when you pick that issue answer it just completely changes your nation. Like for mine, I let the auditors go through government and my taxes dropped from ~40% to ~1.5% which sounds great!

...until I realised it decimated my government-backed industry, defence forces, and safety. Also, people live about a year less than they did before and crime went up by over 10x. Yes, I wanted the taxpayers to get a break but not that much. They should still be paying something!

Now of course there is a way to get around this issue, for the uninitiated - you can use NSIndex. I just forgot and paid the price.
