Sao Cervantes was officially granted its independence in 1962 from the British West Indies. For the first decade of independence, the economy grew an average 6% per year, with the government led by consecutive Labour governments. Despite the growing prosperity, a general sense of inequality pervaded in Black and Creole communities. Many claimed the Labour government had betrayed their own people for money. Distrust in the nation's labor organizations in these groups rose, and voting populations sank to historically low levels. The final nail to the coffin would be the worldwide economic collapse of 1970, which dealt a harsh blow to the economy.

Rising from where the Cervantesian Labour Party had fallen was the Sao Cervantes Party, with a base of blacks, creoles, hardcore nationalists, and many who had previously support trade unionism. Leading the Party was a charismatic individual named Leon Paleologos. He argued that the only way Sao Cervantes could define its own destiny was to leave the British Commonwealth of Nations, and spoke out against foreign domination of the economy, and condemned the unions that had sold out the country to foreign powers, especially the United States.

When the Sao Cervantes were discovered by the Portuguese in 1623, there was a number between 100,000 to 400,000 people on them, mostly the Carib people (who had originally drove out the a group of Arawak-speaking Taino that had arrived there pretty much the same way the Portuguese and the Carib did.

Their current Kanzler united his nation by literally weaponizing monetary fines against all of the squabbling paramilitary groups, and then liberalized the hell out of the entire country, by force. Without actually using force.

The Vozhd (Leader) is advised by a cabinet of Ministers. However, their system is not parliamentary, as the Ministers are chosen by the "upper echelons of government."

Top 3 Private Police Forces:

Securilock-The most successful company, they tend to charge the criminal's family for crimes they commit. Also relied upon as bodyguards for those who can afford that price

Reddington Detective Agency-Founded in the 1800s, Reddington has been involved with many high profile detectives throughout their history.

Crime-B-Gone: A company that is very recent, they are extreme in their methods and deal with offenders harshly.

Crime-B-Gone sounds like a terrorist organization just waiting to happen.

In their world, there are many differences regarding international borders. To name a few, Catalonia is independent, Austria-Hungary has already been balkanized as of 1908, Japan appears to be invading China, Gran Colombia still exists, Poland is independent, and the U.S. took even more land from Mexico.

The President of Sao Cervantes is a popularly elected head of state with five-year terms. The President has many of the traditional roles in semi-presidential republics, such as appointing the head of government (Prime Minister) and other ministerial positions; dismissing the Prime Minister and dissolving the legislature; and declaring a state of war. As far as I can tell, the President is not subject to term limits. The incumbent President is José Joaquim Álvarez Vargas.

The two cities of Idio and Sia nuked themselves into oblivion at some point in the earlier. I wonder why they didn't go the extra mile and name the new nation "Idiosia". Would that have been too subtle?
