Selling age restricted non-medical consumable content (Alcohol drinks and tobacco products) in Canvalland is a misdemeanor.

If a licensed retailer have done this act due to neglect (fail to ask for ID), they will be charged with 2000 Golcas maximum fines.

If done intentionally or multiple times, 5000 Golcas maximum fines and potentially revoke of license to sell tobacco and consumable alcohol. If an unlicensed retailer have done this act, they will be fined 20,000 Golcas max, potentially audition of their license of retail.

If it is a personal act rather than retailer, the person will not be charged unless the custodian of the underage consumer decides to press charge (Antragsdelikt).

In Canvalland, the minimum age to purchase alcohol drinks and tobacco is 16 y/o, while the minor who are between 14 and 16 y/o may consume these restricted contents under the parents' consent. If parents allow the minor younger than 14 y/o to consume, they may be charged with non-felon neglect.

Depends on where it happened. Law enforcement closer to Moelle will be far stricter about this and will net you a charge of animal torture, which can range between a few months to several years in prison. The further south you get, the more lenient you'll find the authority to be. Cock fighting could get you a "Crimes against Nature" charge as this includes both environmental and animal-based offenses. You'll probably only get a year at the very most. In South Aaaaaa, cock fighting and dog fighting have been known to occur with very little, if any, repercussion from authorities.
