Monkey 9 successfully started that fire, but drowned in a nearby lake later in an unrelated incident.

Monkey 5 was found dead by unknown means.

My nation is heavily inspired by movies and videogames involving body horror.

This is my second nation I've made on here.

Monkey 4 stood in the centre of Monkeyland as the world burnt around him. The sun had become a red giant just a few minutes ago, and the seas were evaporating. For this was the end of the world. Monkey 4 was not immune to the end of the world, and while the pain in his body was great, he uttered his last words. Nobody knows what they were. Monkey 4 fell dead. Predictions state that in a few hours, the world will burn in flames at the sun. However,

Monkey 3 yelled "Death awaits!" "It stalks me!" to the other two monkeys who, unsurprisingly, were scared to death as well. He was taken by the Grim Reaper

Monkey 2 voluntarily took a quick pill of cyanide, and expressed his last prayers and wishes against the sorrowful, tragic, inevitable demise of Monkey 1

About the only difference between my nation and beliefs is that free markets are effective in a select few situations, and the compulsory organ harvesting is kind of screwed up

Damnit, I jumped the gun and then missed it. Guess I'll put this here anyway:

Monkey 1, after witnessing the complete annihilation of the rest of its species, wondered if the extinction of the monkeys would actually be beneficial to the cosmos. It means that new life can develop in the niches previously occupied by other monkeys; and it also means that should the human race go extinct, there will be less of a chance (however slim, still less) for a "new humanity" to re-evolve through convergent evolution (simply because there will be less primates). Regardless, Monkey 1 knew the end was inevitable, and so it did what any sane being would do: the monkey injected its own consciousness into a holoprogram, so that while the monkeys end up extinct, its own existence shall not be cut short.

Centuries later, the U.S.S. Defiant finds a capsule floating in space, and transfers it to the nearest Starfleet research ship for scientific analysis. It turns out to be a primitive form of a holoprogram created before they came into existence, which should be impossible. Regardless, it is activated, and the program turns out to be the stored consciousness of a monkey; the consciousness takes on the form of what it used to be, and the crew affectionately dub it "Bobo".

Monkey -1 was peacefully minding his own business when someone asked them "How can you be a negative monkey? How is that possible?". They replied "Oh dear, I hadn't thought of that" and exploded in a puff of logic.

"Bobo", however, was lost by a Russian kidnapper working for the Kremlin. The Russian ship take him away and, under torture, "Bobo" reveals the hideout of the 9,999 clones of himself - though the Russians find the hideout and it is empty. For this bad intel, "Bobo" as Monkey 10,000 is shot and dies.

In his last act, Monkey 1 revives all 10,000 dead monkeys, and reverses their fates. He gives them a chance to undo their mistakes, and perhaps avoid the genocides. The memory is erased forever from their minds as they wake up on a new day.

Monkey 10,000 remembered his past life and had a heart attack.

I'm not that entirely sure if this thread should be forgotten or not, but it's still hasn't reached the 500 pages mark, so there are still plenty of space to repeat another series of monkey deaths. And as it so often does, every time the thread reaches a 10000 monkey mark, users naturally just repeat the cycle, so here goes nothing.
