Yes, I would

In a world where the Spartacists won in 1919 and Trotsky achieved his world revolution, Russia's minority dumping ground in the Far East is undergoing an internal revolution. Led by a sly artist-premier and his technocratic posse, surrounded by a salacious secretive Civil Servants' society, factionalist scheming, and (literal) backstabbing.

I'd rather not, there are way... WAY worse options out there... but I still wouldn't exactly like living there.

Yes because it's better than Russia. I mean learning the local language might be a bit hard but I can take it...

Why would I, a DemSoc, ever want to live in a nation synonymous to TNO's "Reichskommissariat Moskowien"?

I seem to be lagging very badly. My apologies.

Yes, it seems that it would be an worthwhile experience. If I am reading the factbook correctly, it would be a delight to befriend some locals from one of the primary cultural regions. Engaging in dialogue, information exchange would be intriguing. Every thing from sports to cuisine would most likely be enjoyable. If they could put up with my Presbyterian inclinations, I would probably live there for 6 months to half a decade before returning back to my homeline.

It sounds like a very intrguing place to visit, perhaps do a work visa for half a year, but I probably would annoy the native inhabitants too much, and the nation would probably view me as too ill suited for them to want as a permanent resident.

While it would be an interesting experience, the only thing keeping me from saying yes is the whole throwing people out of windows & shooting them on live television à la Guatemala, which is not something that I think I'd be on board with.
