No work, no damn, only inheritance and the fact that he's gay, I care not for his preference. I deal with all kinds of clients in my career but came on man. Stop living off of Daddy's money and contribute to society. Use your power to challenge my cronies in the dark alleys and putting money in pockets of politicians. Do something to show that you are worth your position and keep my boys' job on the edge. We would really appreciate that, man. Maybe I should pull a Batman on you. That'll spark a fire for ya.

Rapture City

- In the underwater city, two roles have emerged from the City's ongoing civil war: the City Monitors who defend the peace and the Red Caps who fight against unjust systems. The city's infrastructure is crumbling under its own weight and kinship is snuffed by the paranoia of totalitarianism. Yet the people would be in for a surprise as their virtual overlord have died many years ago as the oppression continues under his name...
- Not an 1-1 exact replica of Bioshock lore and Rapture City. Only the city's atmosphere and setting is maintained.

Of course, might be because I know the person behind as a friend of mine. Which friend? Shh, let's now let anyone know! The point is, you are a pretty decent person, and I love all your views! Your religious views are yours and I respect that, so I have nothing on that. Just that..... sometimes, you might realise that God is indeed someone in plain clothes, if you catch my drift. ;) Anyway, I am positive on you! Keep doing good, Love! [Looks at Jason] Sheesh, and I thought I would not see unfriendly criminals. I mean, I knew about Stanier... at least, you know, before they got some changes, but you? Hmm, let's see, let's see... hey, a Fate has to take her time with judgments. You don't want THE Judgment to happen! No wait, not Jason... Mason. Ohh yeah, the typical "He's got connections so he doesn't get arrested!" He might be immune to the local laws, but see, the Fate sees all, hm hm! Okay, Gwen, stop being vain, haha! Someone stop me! Now, where was I? Oh yeah, the son of John Mercer. The guy has sons? Damn, I feel sorry for whoever banged him to give birth to kids. Or... maybe it is some vat-grown thing. I would go with the latter, but I can imagine Mrs. Mercer, can't I? You are not that bad compared to your dad, but the fact that you allowed gang violence, and well, having a criminal organisation and everything, I think that speaks volumes about your character. I would say... not too positive, but you are better than your dad, between you and me. I don't want to vent my frustration from John Mercer on you, because I am not that kind of person. I am gonna flip the bird on him someday, because... that is how I roll, for I am Gwen Tracer Allison! See you around Jason- err, I mean, Mason. May Fate - me, make us meet!

OFFICE OF THE PREMIER

Regarding Chief Aviator Gwen Ellen Trixie of Valentine Z,

I have much respect for the military men and women whom put themselves in the firing line voluntarily out of sheer devotion to their country, but what makes the Chief Aviator more than mere human is beyond me. Her feats seem... orchestrated. Her relationship with the government seems... more than cordial. I can't help but believe there is something more sinister than smiles, rainbows, and cheery attitudes for the Valentian World Government's homegrown mascot. A story that has flown too close to the sun if you interrogate me for my opinion.

I wonder what the Chief Aviator has to say about her country behind closed doors, away from cameras, and how much of her daring missions as a scout were conducted by herself alone.

"A theocrat. A racist. A capitalist- not only a simple capitalist, but a fascist. Lésage's outdated belief in a tyrant god that somehow justifies the upper classes' oppression of the working man is enforced upon the population of his nation. Not only that, but the religion has an entire national organization devoted to it. Though they promise that service to this tyrant god will be rewarded with everlasting life in paradise after death, this is nothing more than an opiate to keep the masses appeased- and the upper classes supposedly have a god-given right to lord over the less fortunate, so the oppressed worker dares not question the control the bourgeoisie have over him... even the very state itself enforces this dogma! There are those who would say that Lésage and I are somehow similar, but in truth, there are very few things we have in common. Were he here in Tarkvald, he would have been killed years ago for trying to create such an appalling and insidious society."

"This so-called grand emperor is nothing more than a rich schoolboy who is clearly desperate to win some sort of popularity contest. He checks all the boxes to qualify him as someone that a corrupt liberal society might consider 'cool' or 'dandy'; I suspect, as is often the case with rich schoolboys, that this was orchestrated from the very beginning of his life to achieve that very effect. Even more, he represents essentially everything that is wrong with liberal capitalist societies. He is able to do all that he does because of his wealth- wealth that he inherited from his parents, and indeed wealth stolen from the working man. He even disregards the need to follow the basic functions of human reproductive biology to ensure social cohesion and societal growth. While perhaps not an evil man, Frederick is not fit nor deserving to lead a nation."

"How can one be in favor of scientific advancement, human rights, and religion at once? One cannot. It is a contradiction- a deadly paradox, that Zovban and so many others have convinced themselves is somehow possible. Zovban especially seems to be fond of such irony, for despite running an apparently fascist regime, he fought against fascist powers across the sea to the east. This does not change what he is, however, and despite having an impressive history, I must denounce him."

Chivalry in politics has died and I doubt it ever truly existed in the hearts of rulers to start with. I can respect a fellow gentleman who does not pretend to be what he is not. All I know is how Elena got into power and her campaign promise to remove corruption from the government in order to achieve any hope of progress for her country. But now, currently, there is no information regarding her policies after taking office. Therefore, I cannot make a proper opinion on them, so my overall is neutral till more intel is provided.

Rapture City

- In the underwater city, two roles have emerged from the City's ongoing civil war: the City Monitors who defend the peace and the Red Caps who fight against unjust systems. The city's infrastructure is crumbling under its own weight and kinship is snuffed by the paranoia of totalitarianism. Yet the people would be in for a surprise as their virtual overlord have died many years ago as the oppression continues under his name...
- Not an 1-1 exact replica of Bioshock lore and Rapture City. Only the city's atmosphere and setting is maintained.

The words of a person, or Fate - me, indeed does hold a lot of weight. And I seriously hope that they will reconsider, because they have no idea who the hell they are going to be dealing with, and they will be dealing with a massive boatload of casualties that we will regret doing. Hey, if all else fails, speak quietly... but carry a big stick if things got very, very ugly. We will be watching them over with certainly the greatest interest, but we will never invade them even if we have our general distrust towards one another. That is not what Valentians do, after all! What the Valentians do, however, is to kick some Edgelord's arse when the twat thinks that they can overstep on our niceness. I bid you adieu, Chancellor. Have a nice day!
