Of the 7920+ replies on this thread, I think 6000 of them are Cadonica. I don't think he ever stops listening to music. Like, ever.

In one of these threads, 1/4th of the posts were mine. 12,000 total posts, and nearly 3,000 of them were mine.

I mean, we can actually create a mathematical definition for evolution in terms of the evolutionary algorithm and then write code to deal with abstract instances of evolution, which basically equates to mathematical proof that evolution works. All that remains is to show that biological systems replicate in such a way as to satisfy the minimal criteria required for evolution to apply to them, something which has already been adequately shown time and again. At this point, we've pretty much proven that not only can evolution happen, it pretty much must happen since it's basically impossible to prevent it from happening.
