Blackfield-End Of The World

We're an accident called human beings~~

We're dead but pretend we're alive.
Full of ignorance, fools in disguise~

It's the end of the world.
The end of the world.
It's a prison for dreams and for hopes.
And still we believe there is God~

Digging the lyrics in this song.

And I think that last line probably pretty much gives you a theory what I believe in.

Puma, Good Luck at the Gun Fight, this is basically what bleepy bloop music should sound like we, unlike the bourgeoisie, have nothing to lose and therefore our expression will be the only honest one, our words will be the only challenging ones and our art will be the one revolutionary expression. We need new noise and new voices and new canvases to become something more than the last poets of a useless generation.

Me likey the cellos too. The latter one you had there is more of an instrumental post-rock/ambient song than dark ambient, but I really like some instrumental ambient post-rock. Like Lüüp.

Fightstar - Follow Me Into the Darkness

Hammock in my opinion is one of, if not the best ambient bands I've heard, at least in the ambient post-rock realm. They actually have creative ambient songs, and do it beautifully. I think they are mostly ambient too.

Also, I like that song too! Added them to Spotify. Though, does that really count as Post-Rock? I thought Post-Rock needed like, guitars in it at some point. But I dunno, and it's not like I really care.

TBH, I have no idea anymore. I've constantly heard that as part of the criteria for calling something post-rock, yet I see music that doesn't focus on guitars still referred to as post-rock. IDK.

Ricky Martin - She Bangs

In other words — and this is the rock solid principle on which the whole of the Corporation's Galaxy-wide success is founded — their fundamental design flaws are completely hidden by their superficial design flaws.
