Apparently, communism was enacted as a result of something going on between the CSA or some other weird shit.

The American State of Spain.

"Un Estado, Múltiples Pueblos."

2021, the US State of Spain carries on its regular life as all's right with the world, hopefully for a better future. Maybe we won't suffer another Carlist War?

Huh, the biggest divergence in this lore is that France and Germany actually decide to team up for once against the US, out of all people. It definitely feels somewhat logical, considering the fact that the US decided to annex Spanish territory and keep it for themselves. That definitely is cause for concern.

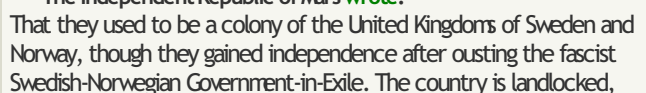

Hell, it gets even crazier in World War 2. The fact that the US is so proactive to the point where they steamroll their own allies is definitely a rather eccentric line of thinking. Still, it's for the best that war end quickly. Sure, the French might've been quite offended by American occupation but I guess you could say, in the case of WW2, that it was for the greater good to simply end the war. Very crazy stuff in general. I likey.

Strangely enough, the Martian Republic functions as more a federation of city-states than anything resembling modern nation-states. It can probably be explained by the fact it has only recently been terraformed and as such its "nations" would more function as classical city-states with colonies than anything resembling a nation. In addition to the 32 city-states on Martian surface, they hold sovereignty over Mars' two moons and several extraplanetary territories outside of the orbit of Mars; these being research, military or mining stations in the Asteroid Belt or on the moons of Saturn and Jupiter.

Their King, Adalwin, had a knack for hitting targets whenever they're down or busy. In a greater scope, as can be expected of "vikings", though they're skilled at war, they fare a lot better when they're conducting quick coastal raids or when they're attacking cut-off or weakened State armies, for example, opportunistically sacking New Rome after the former had barely beaten back the Turkic horsemen.

Their world is essentially built off a number of large, region-spanning blocs that are duking it out between each other in a World War. Of these regional blocs one can name the Global Liberation Army which, while it claims its goal is to "liberate" every part of the world, its sphere of influence only goes from Tanzania in East Africa to Kazakhstan in Central Asia. Curiously, they don't hold Afghanistan.

Something about Germans not converting to Romance culture in their timeline.

BTW, AAN doesn't hold Afghanistan, because only Afghans can!

The AN's legislature is called the Kabul Shura. Many of its members are from the various warlord clans in the country, who discusses therein matters of the nation.

AN: Mr. Smith was/is quite the musical prodigy, he didn't have much of a PR problem when running for president because he had been part of a successful band for over 16 years, or, half his life by then.

In the light brightness of the past, there is only human lonesomeness. And property destruction involving crop fields.

Oh my, where do I begin? The Saucer Pilots are essentially a set of human beings that went through a multidimensional wormhole and then drifted in space until they managed to return to Earth. Since they were in a different dimension -- aka, ours -- they found primitive humans occupying the planet and decided to study them, as they were aware of the fact that the universe wasn't exactly teeming with life. This whole debacle led to the society being strictly about the crew of the ships and the community that surrounds them (not unlike the Quarrians, though much less individualistic) to the point where their society has even undergone (presumably undercover) genetic alteration to boost dopamine levels and morale for when they undergo tasks in the ship (as morale being low could potentially spell absolute disaster for the ship and/or fleet).

This is an extremely interesting factbook that I am very much enjoying. Thanks!

The first registered appearance of the name Eothasia can be found in the works of the classical poet and writer Fidenia, but it is believed that she was using an already-popular term rather than making it up herself.

They have three political parties of which one is the poorly named CCP, except this one is cursed because it's never been communist or revolutionary but is rather conservative, reactionary, and near-theocratic in desires.
