"A beautiful Faerie? Thy hair is long, white, straight, lustrous and shiny. Your hair has curly waves on its bottom, and with bangs on your forehead. Your skin is pale, white and fair. Your eyes are purple, like full of magic. You wear a black leather on your back, and your white and black dress of magic and divinity is of beauty out of this world! You are a beautiful Faerie, a true Faerie-Goddess! Yet you are short, which confounds me, but this is naught surely compared with the pinnacle of beauty that is your form!

You fought in a war? You must be brave and valiant indeed, O Faerie Goddess. You are the Faerie Goddess of stones, of fire, of the craftsgirls, and the basket-weavers. You are the Faerie Goddess of my land, and the Faerie Goddess of Daschime (Yanba)^[1]!

And you are a Princess (Hyorun), Faerie! The Faerie Princess of the Faerie-Goddesses have revealed Herself to me! This is a divine and fortuitous occasion of grace that had come to me, for the Faerie Princess of the Faerie-Goddesses, the Faerie Princess of all Princesses, and the Faerie Goddess has showed to Myself Her true form and appearance which is the pinnacle of beauty. Let me serve you, My Princess, My Faerie Goddess and My Queen, for I will serve you most faithfully and loyally and you shall shower me with grace and blessings, O Faerie Goddess.

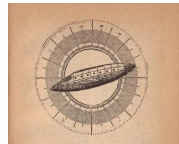

Oh My Queen, My Princess and My Faerie Goddess, true pinnacle of beauty, strength and might, tell to Me Your Name so that I can serve you most faithfully, and I will make my people worship You in My name. You are a Faerie. Your long white hair, your pale and fair skin, and your purple eyes, these show Your Divinity to me - My White-haired and Purple-eyed Faerie Goddess and Princess.

Frankly I don't know whether to feel aroused or disgusted, but kids? At 18? That... Almost seems disturbing. How is she 18? She looks younger! WHY THE CLOTHES BAN? And anti-war?! Do, do you even KNOW what hell you're walking into?! This is madness! The makings of a lunatic! Why would you even approve of this? Truly you have lost your mind.

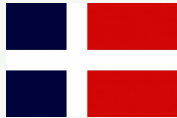

Adding to that, the low age of consent (15! REALLY?!) is just terrible. Awful. THOSE ARE FUCKING CHILDREN. FUCKING CHILDREN. WHY.

On one hand, she was already in power as the national leader of Gonswanza since President Grinberryall, the former Chancellor's era, who maintained a great relationship with the Aquaria, and also act as an important member country of the KTO.

However, uh, she sometimes makes me worry about how young is she. Although I am also just 35, she is 6 years younger, which also probably means 6 or more years less of political experience. Will it be a miracle or is it just luck? Let us observe."

"I can discern very little about their current Chancellor as biographical information regarding Mikoto Kamiyo is incredibly sparse. The same can be said of her predecessor, Chancellor Grinberryall. In fact, only their first and second leaders have any biographical details surrounding them. The first was a militarist and the second was an industrialist. Both are seemingly revered by the Aquarians. It would seem to me that there is something very suspect about Aquaria's most recent leaders. For the time being I would advise keeping oneself distant from the Aquarian Chancellor."

Sitz, defacto leader of expeditionary team "Kite Flyers"

So what am I looking at? "Grand Emperor Charles von Roland?" "Grand Emperor..." really? Was the "Grand" really necessary? Because to me, it really seems like you are compensating for something. As a child, you had a hard time getting along with others because of your "obsession with military history." Why only military history? Politics and culture is just as, if not, more important then military history.

You then joined the military because of "Martial Adventurism?" What? YOU ACTUALLY ENJOYED IT!? I'm sorry Mr. Roland, but I think its pretty hard to believe your stories. Maybe they actually happened, but you exaggerated it for drama, or maybe you just made it all up. Regardless, I don't believe that you went through all of that, and still believe that war is "fun." I also fought in war. A war on a far greater scale then that puny continental conflict you got involved. I fought in the Multiverse War against the Second Hegemony. An aggressive militaristic empire that controlled many worlds throughout the multiverse. Many worlds were also rendered uninhabitable because of the war, including my homeplanet of Qerzi. Earth was also invaded. If you were there, and had seen that, then you wouldn't call that war "fun."

But anyways, how do fare in actually ruling your country? Are you letting your wife implement anti-corruption measures? That's actual nepotism I thought that you were trying to fight corruption, but you are part of the problem. But maybe you are just in a hurry, because of the looming threat of the Aetherborne.

So you might also have to fight against an alien foe, and the reason why these Precursors gave you technology is so you have a better chance fighting them. While your tech is good, I wonder how your abilities are to reproduce them. If the Aetherborne destroys one of your precursor tanks, can you build another? In the Multiverse War, the Sitrimian Collective, the side I was on, won because they could outproduce the Hegemony once they went full military production.

Now regarding your preferences, why did you had to specify that you are against wars of unjustified extermination. Aren't all wars of extermination unjust? How do you even justify it?

Last but not least, I see that you have a lot of nice medals. I imagine that you earned them on the battlefield. But for those from after the war, how many of them did you award yourself with?

Its 2027, almost twenty years ago, a storage-facility with mysterious machines was found on the moon. These machines seemed to have the ability to open portals to other dimensions. A very odd creature Indeed. A robot looking thing born on a planet I can't pronounce leading something like the UNEEU, which sounds like a special branch of the UN. I don't see much to like or dislike about him, and I definitely wouldn't care to meet him anytime soon. With Nemias on his "Mental Health Break" I doubt I can get any reasonable insight on this creature. If anything, he seems to be a decent leader. He looks like the type of thing that would lead an expeditionary team, only to become a brutal dictator or get brutally murdered.

To put it quite frankly, Mr. Roland, I have no interest in you, your policies, or your empire outside of the vague disgust one feels when seeing any other terrible event on television. You could shout from the rooftops about your ideals, your goals, your glory. But I, and many others, will never be able to see past the devastated lovers, destitute orphans, and heartbroken parents you leave in the wake of your ego-stroking wars. To ask between you, the Russians, or the warlords that inhabit your world would be like asking about my preferred type of snake. And frankly? SUBJECT: Representative of the Crimson People Dr. Chimi Akagi's opinion on President of the Near Islands, Tiartlahah Layikovich Vasil

Yes yes, hello old friends and welcome new friends, I'm back to opine on another foreign leader.

I'm currently writing this statement from a random forest in Oita, Japan. Our humanitarian efforts have royally [CENSORED] up.

Anyway, President Vasil, at first, didn't strike me as that reliable of a person. He found his education boring - you know, Lemony Snicket had a quote saying not to trust a man who has never bought a book in his life. It's probably because I was accepted into university at a very young age that I have this opinion against those unwilling to learn despite being given the opportunity to do so. And lo and behold, he apparently never even went to university.

Which leads to my next point: he won his first elections through charisma. Whether that says more about him or the people is up to you to decide, but bear in mind these people put their trust into a run-of-the-mill fisherman. His whole political career is actually driven by this fact - he's practically worthless as a politician, but the people love him. He won the election for president simply because he was the least worst. Do you see why I find him unreliable?

As for his political ideologies, they're fine, I guess. That's about as much as I can say. Nothing screams out to me as anything I need to call out on, considering they're all completely sane and rational. Out of all the information on him, this is the only thing I actually support - maybe not the capitalism part, but oh well.

Overall, Mr. Vasil is a boring man and a generally unreliable politician. If he wanted to go into politics, he should've taken it seriously, not won every election by a fluke. He ran because he didn't like the other candidates' opinions and won because he's a smooth talker. Remember, charismatic leaders tend to turn out as horrible people (take the leader of the Third Reich for example). Do not let this get to your head, and do not make the same mistakes others do in your position.

We went from a robot to a 4-foot-tall humanoid with horns and boy trauma. Turned leader because her and some other scientists were complete failures. While being better at cybernetics than leading a "country"? I know I've heard stories like this from somewhere, I just can't pinpoint the exact place. I'm pretty sure she became leader because everyone else who was qualified ended up dying because of the mistakes, her and her colleagues made. I definitely cannot say I'm impressed, but she seems to have done fairly well leading this refugee group, and maybe they can eventually build back better?

Bréidin guide us. Nemias, or should I say AdamGregory is a cult leader who destroys the freedoms of the people to follow their own path in life, making abortion a crime, and being clearly opposed to the rights of sexual minorities. He claims to follow the Bible, yet where does Jesus or Bréidin authorise his maniacal operations? Where does the son of God lay down cryptic texts after brutal wars? He trains, yes, but for what? To continue his reign of terror? He is guilty of causing the deaths of over 30 million people, and undoubtedly he will continue this legacy. While he has certainly helped his people, he has also contributed to the genocide of the Turkic inhabitants of Zoigai, a pinnacle of majoritarian insanity.

Ultimately, he is a sad, sad shell of a leader, whose crimes must be answered for. And when your crimes finally catch up with you, Adam Gregory, may God have mercy on your soul.

MESSAGE OF THE DAY: "Cáoig sléne léngélghealsihelege" is a perfectly reasonable Partraige sentence.

A puppet of Vladílan, who'da thought?

Yet again I am dragged out of an important meeting to give an opinion. This time on someone who doesn't seem half bad. Sure, she is partially contradictory with being an atheist yet calling her god "Bredin", but she seems to have good intention. While she definitely was carried by her political allies, and her idea for ruling a nation is overall stupid as the full abolition of capitalism dooms a state to stagnant economic growth and weakens the security of a nation's economic situation. She preaches freedom and does her best to follow it. I definitely don't think she paid attention to anything but the 30 million dead part of Nemias' story, and his beliefs. Because it would be kind of obvious that his policies keep him popular with the 99% of people who are religious in Zoigai if she did.

(I may have done this because I wanted Canary rather than Nemias .No I actually did this because I wanted Canary rather than Nemias)
