In recent public polling on the masses' views of the Aterian Empire ruled by Empress Nemo. It seems 88.5% have a favorable opinion towards them and only 11.5% are undecided in whether or not they like them, where it is a blatant zero at unfavorability. I find this quite surprising but I suppose it's because Aquarians are no different from the Russians when it comes to preferring autocratic leaders over democratic ones, and also would explain Andrew's desire to sell them weapons. Otherwise, while I despise her entirely, the government shall obey the will of the people and seek to normalize relations with Nemo's governments. As I have overheard discussions about the prediction involving the fall of Nemo's government and the turmoil that would bring the markets in her universe, even those fears are meaningless, by their money in stocks disappears from the collapse of a warmongering country like

Ateria. I suppose to avert my colleagues making a fool (It's illegal does politicians to act foolishly in Rapture) of themselves can establish a plan to keep Nemo in power and the alleged enemy just a rumor and not a real threat to my utmost displeasure...

Rapture City

- In the underwater city, two roles have emerged from the City's ongoing civil war: the City Monitors who defend the peace and the Red Caps who fight against unjust systems. The city's infrastructure is crumbling under its own weight and kinship is snuffed by the paranoia of totalitarianism. Yet the people would be in for a surprise as their virtual overlord have died many years ago as the oppression continues under his name...
- Not an 1-1 exact replica of Bioshock lore and Rapture City. Only the city's atmosphere and setting is maintained.

"Oh wow! Another powerhungry pretentious asswipe who wants to conquer like they're Alexander the Great. So many scary words in her bio. So evil. She gets even more hate than me. And, for good reason. Your tyranny is truly disgusting and goes against everything I stand for. You remind me of that edgelord who goes by the name 'Immortal'. Except, you have a big...uhm... chest armor, yes chest armor hehe, and a dashing uniform instead of that ridiculous power armor. I guess that's a step up. Oh and lacking the edgelord aesthetic. Thank god. Well, if only the rebels won...

But, despite all of that, you definitely do impress. After all, I only care about what goes on in the RCAS anyways, and you really can't conquer a people who I have bestowed immortality on. How? No going to tell you. Nhehe! How about we make a deal? You spare yourself a grueling war, and I'll be your personal lap-kitty? It'll be perfect! A dashing prince and her lovely princess. Well, technically empress and concubine, but why let specifics get in the way? Oh and forget my undying hatred of monarchy, multiverse theory makes it so that it doesn't matter. Right?

Oh and you'll have to explain how humans evolved in your world. Please tell me. I'm curious."

(Also, please god. Someone restrain this boy. Is this even allowed? I mean, IC, this IS what he'd do. Also, going to do you, Rapture.)

"Welp, I guess she and I are EQUALLY hated. I just want some tender love for once. Anyways, Mercer? We had many back and forths, but I guess we both share- Nope, can't spoil the surprise. Head Secretary Jamie Izabella Maxie Clara "The Elegant and Magnificent Mathematician" Pemella Ellie Natie Lexie Marie Valerie Ruby Æstriðr Fni. Clementine Millicent Cassandra Alex C. Eirian: A very shameful person you are, Mr. Pickett. You simply have the worst attitude that all the Americans do not like or are uncomfortable with, and it is such a shame to see you and to have the displeasure of talking to you. To be honest, though? Looking at your character in more intricate detail, it would seem to suggest that even a person like you is capable of having a limit on what is acceptable and what is not. Case in point, I am surprised at your hounding words towards that dreadful Empress, though I am not surprised at the response you give towards Mr. Mercer over there. So, where does this take you and me, you will ask. For the most parts, I suppose that you are not that bad of a person if looking beyond your politics. You seem to be a sensible person and you are not completely evil, unlike the others that I might have the utmost displeasure of meeting. Oh, Mr. Pickett. I have to say a lot about your fashion statement. I do not have any issues with it, I am simply pointing out matter-of-factly. And it is that you seem to resemble that of a woman, though that mustache is a clear indicator that you are indeed a man. Other than that, yes, like I have stated previously, I have no qualms with the way a person is dressed, and I am simply here to talk about your politics and attitude. After all, appearance is only skin-deep, sometimes perhaps even literally. With all of this said and done, I have done my part in talking to you. At first, I am very disgusted, I really am. Then, I have realised, that while we might not see each other eye to eye, one thing is for sure that you at least have some resemblance of sense in your thoughts, not aligning with the dreadful and cruel dictators. I do hope that you are against Slavery, because... that is the single piece of information that I cannot find about you. A very vital piece of information and yet, I simply cannot find that. Maybe you are too ashamed, or just afraid of someone lynching you. Either way, I will rather not know.

Head Secretary Jamie Izabella Maxie Clara "The Elegant and Magnificent Mathematician" Pemella Ellie Natie Lexie Marie Valerie Ruby Æstriðr Fni. Clementine Millicent Cassandra Alex C. Eirian: How utterly... undelightful, to meet two persons that I am uncomfortable talking to for this very evening. Meeting two people, in this very night, very minute... hmm, it must be something. I will do the mathematics later. Anyway, where were we? Oh yes... Mr. Alexander II, Emperor of Kyria and All Her Domains. What to think of you, you ask me. I will say that you are on par with Mr. Pickett up there. I will give

it credit that you are not an extremely racist person as him, but it does not help that you have hints of being an awful xenophobe, and that is indeed one thing that I cannot simply stand for and I will always be against that. Tolerance and acceptance will be the paths to friendship, peace, and just talking all-around. And additionally, it does not help that you are against the Artificial Intelligence. I am not sure how to break it to Clarissa directly, but knowing her, I simply wish to forget about this and not tell her more and openly about the fact that someone out there wants her dead and abandoned. It will break her heart, and I am very sure that you are the kind of person who wants that happening to her. Shameful, but I will simply not let that happen, Darling. I am slightly negative on you. You are not as bad, but I cannot stand you two. Goodness gracious, this is not a particularly good time to go out and socialise.

"I do not support slavery. Well, I guess I did it to the Lynette in Vault City for several years, but that was because she's a n-----. No, that's a lie. I did it because she treated 'servants' like slaves for decades before I liberated Vault City. I mean, I had to make all of her meals while she was picking cotton in my hydroponic field. You knew how much it costed to find prewar cotton seeds just to punish her tyranny? Bah, it was a hassle. Her attitude definitely made it worth it. She didn't get the gifts of immortality either and got deported with the rest of them afterwards.

But otherwise, I abolished slavery completely from America. Hell, I cracked down on slavery HARD. Not only slavery. I banned serfdom and even, in most circumstances, wage labor. This was during the military Risorgimento phase, though I got the law passed by popular vote. I know, it's ironic. The Neo-Confederates abolished slavery and reunited America! I guess it has to do with the fact that so many slaves were white and robots are a thing. Oh and I think slavery was a mistake. Why do I want to bring black people to America? BLEH! Worst mistake the South ever did. Should've kept them in Africa where they belong.

So yes, I hate slavery of sapient beings. And yes, n-----s do count. And, our economy IS syndicalist and mutualist.

And yes, I do look feminine, and even more so when I shave my beard. I go clean-shaven when I'm not on military duty or feeling in the Civil-War mood. Thanks for the compliment!"

If I had any complaints I'd have to point to her gambling habits. Maybe gambling isn't the right word, as she doesn't leave much up to chance, but you know what I mean. how letting the masses handle things themselves on a scattered, local scale would be more efficient and beneficial than having nation-wide coordination through a command structure, though I may be biased because I was designed for that purpose. Besides that, he has an overall tendency to focus more on fulfilling various "rights" and promoting "tolerance" than maximising efficiency and cohesion. To be expected of democratic leaders, no matter whatever "authoritarian" tendencies they may have. He may be a socialist, but his reasons for that appear to be almost completely different from mine.

Well. A football player. Certainly a change from the revolutionary general I just went over. I wonder if I could outmatch him, I may have an edge in some aspects with my targeting systems and mechanical body, but at the same time, I wasn't exactly built for more hands-on tasks and he seems rather skilled. It seems his change of heart was a wise choice, though. His proficiency in his new field is considerable and I must commend his work in rooting out corruption. His view of the state as something that should essentially only serve as disaster relief, though, isn't something

Opinion on Nemo

Look who is talking again - the fascist snake, who doesn't know her place. She has turned Ateria into a militaristic, imperialist state - not like that Ateria was very stable in its democratic form either, but this one has underwent many changes in leadership too. I have no problems with militarism, as long as it is used to smash tyrants, servants of darkness, and their hounds. However, Nemo is one of them, which is more than just unfortunate... I could perhaps give condolences to her family, but judging what offspring they produced, it might have been for better, that rebels killed them, as apple doesn't fall far from the tree. Unlike that German guy, who is at least a puppet for a militaristic, crazed chancellor, she takes her role as a monarch to its logical extreme. Others have got her character spot on - she is a machavellian fascist, no better than Tom.

"I am no stranger to the concept of a Tyrant. But as we all know, familiarity breeds contempt. I feel it cannot be put into words how much I dislike Nemo and how she treads on those in her Empire who work hard. She suppresses the just, crushes the brave, and slaughters those who put their trust in her. Despicable. But alas, this is the byproduct of living in such... unenlightened times. I think it's fair to say that while Nemo may be convinced of her own power and significance, she is just another mote of dust in the wind. There have been tyrants, there are tyrants, and there always will be tyrants. She is nothing special, and I think the quicker she gets that simple fact into her laughably small brain, she might become a wiser ruler and make something of her hellhole. But alas, it's fair to say that her arrogance will not allow for this. Let's hope she's overthrown."

AN: "I like Windigo. President Tom is indeed an embodiment of all that is dangerous to the preservation of the Human Race, and the enemy of my enemy is my friend, correct? But beyond our mutual dislike of Tom, we're actually two very different people. I feel that, despite his bravery on the field of battle, which may I say, I respect him for immensely, when given a nation to rule I'm afraid he might fall a little bit short. He's too... radical. This is understandable, of course. I believe that liberalism sounds like a great idea having lived under the rule of such a Despot for so long. But the state must be ruled with a steady hand as well. He can't even control his revolutionaries, and they've committed crimes against those that he wants to save. Look, he's a great man, but I think he'd be a terrible leader."

As I have already seen with many democracies as to a reason why Rapture will never adopt such a flawed and ineffective system. Otherwise, despite my disapproval for democracy, I do indeed find Rodrigo's government and leadership to be most intriguing. "And I am not gonna accept his philosophy! It rejects happiness for the sake of efficiency, and would make us feel like some mechanisms with no soul and heart. It would make us grey and passionless, and tourists would no longer feel that attractive freedom. Culture is not about being upscale, it's about being creative and passionate and expressing oneself. He fails to understand that, and that's a hopeless case to me. Just like our benevolent and pleasure seeking nature is hopeless case to John Mercer. Ryan just screwed up a good idea, okay? No need to get all pissy about concept of personal freedom, dude! It works for us, just like your order works for you! Just look at it...

We can keep neutrality as long as it's even possible, but understand each other? That's far, far beyond Aquarian logics and rationality and our intuition and ingenuity. What we do need it to find a point, where we agree. How about free and high quality education? We both provide it to our people extensively. Maybe nice infrastructure? How about we both try to advance ourselves technologically? We both... well... my previous incarnation, Seth actually... saved our country from ruins.

Even if ya' stronger, ya' still better off being friends with us. Who knows, what we can provide ya' with, or what goods we might sell ya'. Just try to get over our differences, and ya' get a nice tradin' partner... okay?"-Shawn Bjornson

Now, no... YOU listen to me. I want assurance that none of them will be hurt, or else there will be consequences. Hey, don't try to pull one up on me, you know who the hell I am... Justifications, my ass! You don't hurt the people that I don't want get hurt, or it will be a very chilling consequence and ending for you and your people, you hear me? I hope that we will come into a consensus! See you around. [End] Ahh, where was I? Oh yes, Mr. Bjornson! It's so wonderful and great to see someone like you once again, haha! I was actually going to do it for that person two posts back, but... I guess you and I are Fated, heh heh. Anyway, don't mind that. It's just... assurance, that no one I know and love will be hurt, let's put it that way. I swear, the duties of me, it's not a pleasant thing to go around that, but it keeps things in line. Oh, and if you are asking? I am very positive on you, of course! Someone that knows the nature of this international business scene and negotiates. Now that's what sets you apart from the others! Always willing to give peace a chance, unlike those certain warmongers I know that wants to pull a trigger as soon as someone drops a soda can! I should start charging fees for a timeline clean-up.

"I have respect for people of military background. Gwen is no exception, although by God is that name a mouthful. I would say that she's also a good person, with a kind heart. But me and her come from very different backgrounds. Where I am, kindness is weakness. To be 'good' is an exercise in futility. These things will distract her from her duties. Also, the ability to travel around universes and control time at will would be worrying for anybody she serves under. What's to stop her from just ditching the operations when the going gets tough? Of course, I doubt being fair-weather is necessarily a characteristic that could be attributed to Gwen, but you never know how people get when they're put under enough pressure. I think that Gwen would be a valuable asset, until she snaps."

"He would never accept our culture, and I would rather commit sepukku with a rusty steak knife, than become even half as uptight as him! There is a large pit of misunderstanding between us, and there is no way we can ever befriend each other, due to cultural differences. The best course of actions we both can do is just refrain from attackin' each other. No war, just relations as cold as cryo chamber, that's what would best characterize our mutual feelings.

So let's just stay true to our opinions, shall we? No way, one side will persuade other."-Shawn Bjornson

It has been at least 200 years since my last comment on Nemo and over those years I have seen the stockholders, those not gifted enough to be bestowed with immortality as a selected few are. Have all become ash and dust, alongside the masses who held a liking to Nemo's devilish leadership but thanks to changes in the educational system, I have fully assured that the masses will be fully educated on leaders that inhabit the multiverse to keep them informed so they won't support a genocidal tyrant such as her, which wages mindless wars for what cause that has yet to be known. Also, that fear of her fall seems to have never been true in the lightest so that concern back in 2019 was absolutely for nothing. Which is very unfortunate. I would have enjoyed to see Nemo's regime collapsing in live action with a warm cup of tea in my hand with a nice Mediterranean cuisine to match with my

Rapture City

- In the underwater city, two roles have emerged from the City's ongoing civil war: the City Monitors who defend the peace and the Red Caps who fight against unjust systems. The city's infrastructure is crumbling under its own weight and kinship is snuffed by the paranoia of totalitarianism. Yet the people would be in for a surprise as their virtual overlord have died many years ago as the oppression continues under his name...
