Sent to a mental asylum for claiming to "lag spike" the "servers." We have no clue what "lag" or "servers" are, so you must clearly be out of your mind... poor thing.

Most people would be too scared to face the wrath of the Coca-cola company, but overall you'd be prosecuted for theft and vandalism so likely a fine and/or year in jail. Getting your hands chopped off is also possible.

Depending on the severity of the crime you'd be looking at around 20 years in prison for sabotage, and you'd be on a watchlist for the rest of your life.

A police tank, yes, an actual freaking police tank, (or two) would pull up to the house in question and aim at it until the child's vehicle was relinquished. Then it would be checked, and if it passed the process it would be used in the military.

It depends, if your objective is to serve the nation, then, no problem, but if it's for beginning a rebellion... torture, and finally... be eaten alive by rats. Treason?

Depends on what is the context of how they are being charged for treason.

Between 5 years for spying on its military to life imprisonment without parole for betraying the country for personal gain in war.

You'll be paying back all the money you owe, or in working prison until you've paid it back (which in extreme cases can effectively mean life in prison, if the fraud is in the millions for example.)

Spending most of the military budget on tanks, except they're actually fish tanks.

Depending on what kind of justice was taken into one's hands, a medium to short prison sentence or it's not punishable by law. (So being Batman is illegal)
