Not sure about that, but this thread, as noted by the title, is the ninth incarnation. Surely the mods have noticed this at one point between the start of the first one (which must be long, long ago) and the present. I think they would have told us if they saw this as spam.

I mean, we can actually create a mathematical definition for evolution in terms of the evolutionary algorithm and then write code to deal with abstract instances of evolution, which basically equates to mathematical proof that evolution works. All that remains is to show that biological systems replicate in such a way as to satisfy the minimal criteria required for evolution to apply to them, something which has already been adequately shown time and again. At this point, we've pretty much proven that not only can evolution happen, it pretty much must happen since it's basically impossible to prevent it from happening.
