Monsone: “I do not know much about her, but her pastimes seem wholesome enough. She leads a successful nation, even if it is a bit anti-church towards the stance of her liberalistic ideas. Who are we to judge? She is still very respectable and as the Leading Reverend, running the nation while our prophet Cary the Golden Retriever prepares the next source of divine information from Jesus Christ, I am tempted to think about how our complete restoration of the gospel can be applied to diplomacy. Cary teaches patience, obedience, kindness, and sustained love in her daily life. Jesus taught salvation, mercy, atonement, and good works. Heavenly Father teaches doctrine and rules. If we were to implement such respect in how we run these opinionated discussions, we may be in a better place. I have high hopes for this madame, and hope she has reached what she has aspired to be.”

With cordial sincerity,
~ Dorothy Shirleyton

AN: “His politics, motivations, and aspirations may be questionable but I can not deny that he is rooted in moralism and good values and ultimately has done what he believes is right for his nation. I respect his aspirations for environmental health and modesty, but hardline nationalism is not the way that Jesus Christ has taught us to be. Let us be patriotic citizens to our own countries, but never trample over others. Emperor, let all be well with you as we bless these forthcoming days under the spirit of current events.”

With concerned sincerity,
~ Dorothy Shirleyton

"Frankly, everyone like Kal'Shazzar these days should just stop overusing the trope of mad scientist-based leaders, it's about as repetitive as I based most of my characters as curvaceous, ignorant militarists with a killing spree fetish. Also a crown. Same goes for Narcissus. Hmph, most of his research just goes to developing state-of-the-art weapons for Godular and very less to the defence of the environment of our home planet. Irony, all of these people build weapons to defend themselves from each other and yet none of them have figured out how to protect nature, just goes to show that humanity is unable to function as one whole species with leaders constantly creating division among us and distracting us from the defence of this once beautiful planet now polluted by our waste and choking the very life that sustained us for MILLENNIA because nowadays we just decide to turn to scientists and environmentalists for the answer to the ocean of problems WE caused! Ah, crap, sorry I didn't mean to go on a tirade there. Ahem, where was I? Oh right, Kal'Shazzar.
