Sounds about right.

They are a Japanese City-State that were once part of both the Dutch and British Empires.

Again, still bare bones. But more fleshed out this time! (barely)

The states history started around the time when Emir Dawud ibn Muhammad al-Hasani of Damascus proclaimed himself the King of Jerusalem after defeating Ayyubid Egypt in the Siege of Jerusalem. The Pope recognized his claim, despite neighboring Cyprus disputing it.

Humans are not entirely extinct in this timeline; the remnants are a regime of terror in the mountains of what was once Switzerland, and a population of much more decent human beings in space. However, the other remnants of land on Earth are now populated by Inklings.

Prime Minister Mayweather was once removed from office due to a corruption scandal. Her successor was so corrupt that she was returned to office by a vote of 999 to 1. I wonder who that one guy was.

Within this massive nation of almost 700 million there is a tiny, 10,000 person communist regime that is hanging out. On a sidenote I consider the factbook called communist burgers to be click bait. What kind of a name is Leadership City?

Erebus Space Command is the result of 300 years of interstellar expansion in a new galaxy with no contact with the Milky Way. She actually wasn't Prime Minister at that time, nor was she involved in the corruption scandal.

Also, the one person who voted against was Batra himself.

Lady Protector Ellenya and other citizens of Erebus Space Command have psionic abilities as a result of the "slipspace" freak accident that teleported their ancestors between galaxies 300 years ago.

Their story is an odd case of what could have happened in the Old World Era (In the time where Humanity still thrived before the eventual decimation of it's population in our timeline). In Karamiko's (Or better known as the Republic of Antarctica) timeline, contamination gave the continent of Antarctica a new face: Once a frozen wasteland, it became a paradise, with lush forests, beautiful lakes, etc.

But it was not always like this, oddly enough. For a large part of Karamiko's history, Antarctica was essentially a failed country, but on a continental scale. Terrorism and mass shootings were common in that time.

Their world actually deviates a bit from the Splatoon canon as upwards of a couple million humans still live despite the "Extinction" event.

Along with this, somehow the nukes used were powerful enough to fuck up entire fault-lines, which is geologically impossible but my usage of nukes in lore isn't much better, which caused the sea levels to rise to a point where all that's left of the US is the Appalachians and the Rockies. Why do I bring up the US? Well because, in the end, they were the voice of reason in warning future civilizations to not screw up like they did.

Also, looks like Utah survived. So, yay, the US state I want to visit wasn't destroyed

Crown Princess Azalai's championed Occitania's constitution and Declaration of Liberty, both of which were incredibly radical and progressive for their time. For example, they limited the power of the monarchy, granted suffrage to all adult citizens, and introduced a semi-direct democracy.

People tend to assume that Entrance of the Gladiators by Julius Fučík is what that ever so famous circus clown theme is. And in a way, it is. Nobody would ever argue with you on this fact.

However, if you want to be an unlikable, pedantic jerk, the song actually known to be circus music would be a version composed for American woodwind bands (and later transcribed for fairground organs) titled Thunder and Blazes, published by Louis-Philippe Laurendeau.

Of course, this information is of absolutely no consequence to anyone.
