For government officials, no punishment if you were allowed into where they were sleeping. If you broke into the official's sleeping place though, you will get at least life sentence in a High Security prison. If the court rules that the mustache drawing was done with the intention of discrediting an official, though, then the death penalty may be dealt.

For celebrities, once again no punishment if you were allowed into their sleeping place, but you'll get at least 20 years in prison if you used breaking and entering to do it.

Association with gangs in really any violent way is a pretty easy way to get yourself sentenced to death, or outright shot on the spot if red guards find you. This is one of the more heavily and violently enforced policies because

Not a crime unless you hurt someone. If you did, that's a $100 fine (the reason why it's so little is 'cause a spork is not really much of a weapon).

Mass potato chip theft.

Putin doesn't exist in our world, but ig publicly supporting a leader with a similar oligarchical rightist and traditionalist form of governance/beliefs would likely result in you being outed as a reactionary, or a sympathizer to the previous banana republic government. Which, depending on how lucky you are, may mean getting sent to a work camp, or death, most proly at the hands of a revolutionary guard who will either shoot you on the spot or drag you into the streets and beat you until youre unalive. So word of advice, don't do that here

Not a crime unless you cooperate with the terrorist's activities. Doing so would be treason, punishable by a life sentence or even a death penalty.

A fine equal to 3x the cost of replacing the ant farm and caning.

Repeated offenses are punishable by up to 5 years in prison in addition to the above, where caning will occur every week. If multiple counts, the sentences may be consecutive.
