I've used both. Political and military figures or just regular people/lower ranking soldiers.

tbh i've used regular-ish characters but i like to make sure they're still somewhat relevant to society at large i.e. an employee at a particularly relevant corporation

THE PEOPLE * ETERNAL

" We will not bow to your dictation. We are free. We bled to be free. Who are you to tell us what we may and may not do? We stopped being your slaves an era ago. "

South Reinkalistan is a massive, ecologically-diverse nation notable for its roving student militias and widespread hatred for the elderly. In the midst of a room-temperature cultural revolution that's lost its momentum, the Party carefully plans its next move. As the brittle bones of fragile empires begin to crack beneath their own weight, history's symphony reaches crescendo pitch. The future is all but certain.

micro.blog, despite its early cringe, remains the greatest RP social network in the history of NS. Punch a strong (but firm) second.

Its hilarious that people keep reviving it, not even necroposting, but just straight up reviving it after a few days, maybe even weeks.

And it's even funnier it started as what some could call an objectively racist/supremacist rant, though it's also pathetic to see the OP is STILL responding as well to people calling him out and said OP saying "nooooo, your wrong".

I kinda wish it could get locked already, jeez.

I am genuinely convinced that the mods don't lock certain threads because they think they're funny.

Same with users, I think that there are certain users who would have otherwise been made DOS long ago but the mods think it's funny to have them around.

A lot of this, from what I understand, derives from the fact that most UCRs are much smaller than GCRs and thus are deemed less important by GCRs in terms of their impact on the broader community. There's some truth to that admittedly, but there are times when I get the impression that worthwhile accomplishments have been overlooked simply because it didn't impact a GCR or an affiliated UCR.

Y'all remember when it seemed that at least once or twice a year there'd be a thread in moderation asking 'Why do you guys ban Nazi flags but allow communist flags when they killed millions of people too?'

At some point the mods just started locking those threads whenever they saw them, probably because:

A. The arguments always went in circles

B. Nazi symbolism isn't banned because of the death count of the Nazis or whatever, it's banned because the site owner said so and that ain't changing

Nazi flags are banned in most websites because almost the core focus is the genocide and stuff

Erm, what's a GCR and what's a UCR? First time I've heard of them.

Also the current resolution at vote failed to offer a sensible argument for it's own existence, yet, somehow, it was written just well enough to pass.

Alas, just because it can fly past the first group of judges doesn't mean the rest of the collective WA would approve of it.

Edit:

Also checking it over quickly, I would have said it may have suited the Security Council better but... Eh... Then again most SC resolution things defer to condemning or commending regions. Or repealing said documents. And given my lack of care for such affairs, I just vote for the majority UNLESS it's a topic that would impact me, like a military budget increase or something to cut back on WMDs.

What about the attempts at a resolution condemning the Communist Blocs that are poorly written and hilariously shot down Understand that The Communist Bloc is failing its citizens. They have taken control of industry and their leaders intentionally decrease civil liberties. Some of them trap their citizens within their horrifying walls.

Action The Security Council hereby condemns The Communist Bloc.

I mean I suppose its a summie thing.

Dunno why they adore slavery so much, though. Few (if anyone) is buying, heck, there's even a select few buying slaves for the express purpose of freeing them.

Ironically said sellers are offering poor quality stock for comically high prices (or the inverse), when historically in chattel slavery you had to ensure said stock is of the highest quality possible, but also sell it for a HIGH price to willing buyers without caring for what purpose they would be used so long as money changes hands.

Eh, I'm not even sure if it's worth reporting or not, at this point, given they are as you said: thinly-veiled fetish threads.
