What exactly do you mean by stalking? Like... just following someone closely on social media? Physically following them around? Continuously spying on someone? It depends widely. The only case in which you can be criminally convicted is in the latter cases where there is physical stalking and the victim explicitly told you to stop and you continued to do it.

Technically not a crime, Andronyan Citizens have a right to gun ownership for self-defense against criminals, foreign hostiles AND the Andronyan government if it where to become tyrannical, so... not technically a crime.

Well, depending on what you said/on the context, you could be fined a small amount or imprisoned for up to one year.

Depends. While most war crimes were legal in Laka if ordered to (barring rape), for the past few months ever single the signature of the Bilateral Detente Act with the US, Laka has agreed to prosecute some war crimes, so if it's anything than rape 2 years of military prison without discharge, high likelihood of getting a dishonorable discharge after finishing the current contract. If rape then firing squad.

Would probably be classed in a similar vein to first-degree murder, so long prison sentence and dishonourable discharge

Well, they don't exist here, but if they did, the crime would probably be harassment (maybe either sexual harassment or a hate crime depending on other factors) so up to $2,500 in fines (and an equal number in compensation to the victim), up to 3 months in prison, and up to 4 months of community service and mandatory therapy sessions.

Not a crime, although it should be noted that Zaranistan has shelters and an initiative that incentivizes fellow citizens to take in homeless individuals and assist them with getting their lives back on track. The only homeless individuals prevented from these programs are individuals addicted to drugs who refuse treatment and criminals.

Imprisonment if intent to kill can be proven or implied, or if pollution was deliberate and high enough in quantities. You might just get a fine, however.

Would be a manslaughter charge so the maximum sentence is 5 years in prison, plus 2 years of mandatory rehabilitation.
