"A machine tricked into believing it is in fact alive, a most pitiable state of affairs. I suppose I can somewhat admire its drive to conquer, but rather than dominate and subjugate, it seeks only to assimilate, turning people into yet more mechanical sockpuppets. What's the point of that? Should you hold yourself to be superior, why seek to drag the inferiors up to your level? They exist to serve, to obey the will of their betters, and should know their place. This just goes to show that even this machine-man is a lesser being compared to the those that follow the will of Maar."
