Not very many state secrets to be had in the first place, but it depends on who exactly is doing the selling. If he is a soldier or citizen of any of the four countries occupying Paris, he will be dealt with according to his homeland's justice system... which would likely mean the death penalty or life imprisonment, but at least he is afforded a trial back home. If he is a Parisian or citizen of any of the

If in public by non-resident, non-Muslim, in peacetime:
A starting point of 14 years, with parole available after 7 of those years, for sedition.

If In public by a non-Muslim resident in peacetime:
Generally seven to nine years in prison followed by exile to a country which follows their religion.

If in public by a non-Muslim resident in wartime:
Usually, seven to ten years in prison followed by either exile (if the war has ended by then) or detention awaiting a parole hearing until the war ends (if it hasn't)m

If in public by a Muslim or munafiq resident in peacetime:
Same punishment as a non-Muslim.

If in public by a Muslim or munafiq resident in wartime:
Tried for both sedition (punishable by up to fourteen years imprisonment) and high treason (punishable by death)
