On top of that, he's against militarism. Seems like a very weak man if you don't care about keeping your nation secure. Sigh I'll never understand how a pacifist can be a leader... "Production is a key component to liberation. I restate the slogan of my party, liberation means: education, production, livelihood. However in this case I offer an example where production means pain. Cynthia and Paterson represent a party led, more like owned, by multimillionaire capitalist leeches. We have capitalism here and we have millionaires here we cant deny that but those are issues we have to fight against and organize around as per the revolution. At least we can accurately claim to not be the subject of the anarchy of the market.

These two represent an unsustainable production for the sake of profit not production to thoroughly and absolutely eliminate poverty and liberate the masses of people."

Oswald's Mood: Inimical

"For most he can be commended for providing subsidies to refugees and putting forth reforms to social welfare and the country's economy. From me, however, he will not receive commendation and will instead receive words of opposition aimed against the political-economic dogma practiced by so-called 'revolutionaries' with outrageous claims of 'fighting to free the proletariat masses'. Arek is either disillusioned or simply mad enough to go ahead with his country's 'revolution' and all the while saying that liberation is really a three-word slogan meaning: 'education', 'production', and 'livelihood'. And him calling people who, in his eyes, are multimillionaire capitalist leeches, I encourage him to make a visit to the Russy Federation, the pinnacle of a soviet socialist state where the disreputable Soviet bureaucrats take advantage of the grave misfortunes that had befallen upon their people. Surely they would never let their people starve in severe famines and flee their motherland en masse."

- His Imperial Majesty the Emperor of the Imperial Fatherland, Oswald

"What can I say? Arek tries to use revolutionary ideas to seize means of production for the state from market. And not only means of production. I know successful socialist and communist states, where the people can always count on state support and poverty is literally non-existent. But I also know many failed socialist states, which either collapsed and dissolved, or became poor and starving. When the state plans and controls every damn kiosk, this requires a well-oiled and optimized bureaucratic machine to adapt to the changes and possibly disasters. Otherwise, if bureaucracy bloats, it will not let the economy adapt to changes and kill it eventually. Plus, it requires competent administration, and checks and balance for handling corruption, as on long bureaucratic chains, the resource losses can be colossal.

It's like a non-superconductor wire, which has resistance and thus, the longer it is, the less powerful current it delivers. Which is why socialism is more demanding in terms of personnel. Eliminating poverty is a monumental task, ya' know."-Shawn Bjornson

"There are serious doubts, that Emperor Oswald I will endorse or at least tolerate Skyhooked and they have their basis, because conservative protestanism is something we in good ol' Skyhooked would not even consider adopting in at least... I don't know, several centuries. Historical scars from neofeudalist theocratic oppression are still there and won't go away. Besides, we don't go with hunting on communists and socialists. Now, what about military policy... His aversion for "Wunderwaffen" might backfire in this war, because an expensive and impractical weapon discovery, actually might give essential scientific data, which can lead to invention of a revolutionary and practical weapon or some other non-military technology. Besides, first prototypes were rarely practical. One day, we will receive his feedback on Skyhooked, but trust me dudes, I know for sure that it will be full of hate."-Shawn Bjornson

"Shawn is quite the curious individual. His overall behaviour is not exactly that you would expect of a typical leader, but it seems to work really well for his nation. He definitely shows intelligence behind his rather laid-back and party-going attitude. While he is a fighter, he seems to have more interest in acquiring allies rather than pick fights, so I can definitely approve of that... Also, after digging up a bit more about Skyhooked's environmental progress, it warms me to see that he was able to completely restore a toxic wasteland to a sprawling green environment. For this reason, I could very easily work together with Shawn."

I and my people completely endorse her views on equality and environmentalism, and I might even take her as a role model to further strengthen egalitarianism in my country. I also find her perspective that nature is the decider of all things ultimately quite interesting. Many times, we who are in positions of power think we can bend rules to our own wants, but ultimately, its the universe which will decide our world's fate. Although I find her disinterest in capitalism and interest in a "science", alchemy, rather irritating, she is a wonderful leader as a whole, and the people of Toebeans are blessed to have her as one."

"there never seems to be a shortage of leaders who have served in their own military at an earlier point in their lives. Not a bad thing of course, since it teaches them a lot when it comes to leadership as well and Christophe here is no different. His legalisation of same-sex marriage is a plus, as love should never be restricted to just male and female. Its also nice to see he also improved relations with other nations who's tensions were rather high before he ascended the throne. Props to him as well for his royal family taxation reforms... As for negatives, i honestly cant see anything, but there is quite a bit of information which seems to be missing, especially when it comes to policies. nevertheless, whatever his policies are, it is his choice and i would respect them providing they did not overly harm anyone or anything. Perhaps he would be interested in meeting up for some shooting practice together, on of the many things i like to do in my spare time."

So I suppose it cancels out, but yknow, it doesn't matter much. Is' not like tanks could do much 'gainst her, so there's a distinct lack o' leverage on our side, in that regard."

THE STATE OF ACHARET

The puppet that just won't stay dead has crawled its way out of the grave once more.

Oswald's Mood: Lowering Expectations

"Since this describes him as an 'up-and-coming' leader, I tend to keep my expectations low when it comes to the inauguration of a country's new leader. And frankly I am not so sure what to think of him as of now. Until he assumes office, perhaps? I will be left with my thoughts on him, and again, I am lowering my expectations until he is finally inaugurated."

- His Imperial Majesty the Emperor of the Imperial Fatherland, Oswald I

Alright, gonna bet on low effort or a shit, edgy threat.

WORD of The President

"Emperor Oswald's two parts bad and one part good. He is an enemy of progressive and socialist forces and quells their ability to build a democratic movement to make their demands by throwing out comparatively moderate concessions. He holds back his country by utilizing conservative social policies and by protecting his throne. It is also to my attention that he lives in a time close to a thousand years before my own so I fear the understanding of what a conservative is in his time may have left me continuing to be an orphan.

However, I did say one part good. I can not deny the man is pragmatic. His response to the building of, as he put it, 'wonderweapons,' which would drain resources and throw into the world yet another potential weapon of mass suffering is a big fat no. Of course for the former reason and not the latter but reasons and words don't matter when placed next to the material result of actions. I am sure plenty a man breathed a sigh of relief when he made his position on that very clear."

Signed, President of the Federation, Secretary-General of the People's Party, Inteins Arek

Tyranny of the Majority is just democracy manifested by other means.

"I'm not particularly fond of Arek's republican and socialist leanings, but I do like his views that no system of governance known to humanity is perfect, and that he espouses democracy and civil freedoms. I'm not fond of the fact that he doesn't like the monarchy, which has served as a perfect system of checks-and-balances in my country, and I'm also not fond of the fact that he doesn't believe in freer markets, but nevertheless, whatever the system may be, he keeps his country peaceful, happy and stable, and that is what leaders are supposed to do."

"We would almost be in favor of him were he not a republican. While I prefer the system widely known as state capitalism, his socialism seems to work just as well. We can not ignore his republicanism however, a strong economy means nothing when your people rip each other apart over petty squabbles. If he would let his state take proper care of his people then we would be in favor of him, but until then we will be neutral."

"What good is a monarch who isn't in complete control of his government? Phillippe should be in charge of his nation, not a figurehead of it. Though he retains some power he should have more and the fact he hasn't taken it-and has allowed the sham of voting to go on-is shameful. Our opinion is negative"
