Hit with a "What the hell is wrong with you???" and given prison time. The length of the stay will most likely depend on the level of malice the action was taken with.

If you mean mayhem as in cutting limbs off, at least 25 years in prison, otherwise depends on the crime. Could be anything from a fine, to death if murder was involved.

Illegal eviction of a mother and a 5 year old child?

by Juansonion » Wed May 11, 2022 8:28 am

If eviction was in the wrong, the tenants are owed two years' rent and, unless the home was already decommissioned or rented out to another tenant, the wrongfully evicted must be rehoused in said home.

Not a crime in and of itself, though members and the founder can all be prosecuted for incitement to mass violence depending on whether someone tries to kill a landlord based on their ideology.

Hacking the military or convincing high-ranking military officials to authorize the launch of a nuclear weapon on a target inside the borders of a country at this time at war with YN, with the intention of starting a global nuclear apocalypse.

Given Lakan extremely liberal and unrestrictive usage of nuclear weapons convincing a sarge or something to fire off a Davy Crockett into a few poor fellers' position might render an Article 15 or even a Page 11 for said militaryman for unauthorized attack, and the one convicting him may result in penal colony of up to 4 weeks, nothing more serious. After all in Laka nuclear weapons are lost, accidentally set off frighteningly often

Police (and passerby's) can and WILL beat up the exhibitionist, they are very likely then going to spend a day inside police cell, no food just water and bread. Then they're likely to be charged with severe public embarrassment, resulting in several weeks of forced labor. If repeated attempts then they're going to be expelled from Laka.

There's only been one case of this. The perpetrator is, by technicality, the only person to be executed in the Naturalist Federation; thrown off of a building and killed by a civilian police officer. Due to how the law treats civilian police officers, the judge had to rule it as an execution on the part of the justice system. Today, the precedent still stands, though it has not yet been used in the ruling of another case.

It's a felony, you'll be fined $15,000-$50,000, and spend between 6 months to 6 years in prison.

Forcibly converting someone to a different religion (this could mean giving someone an unwanted baptism, or it could mean forcing someone to renounce their previous faith through use or threat of violence)

Now... this is complicated: the main crime here is threatening someone with violence, which would carry multiple consequences, like losing your gun rights, fines and maybe even jail-time, depending on the circumstances, but that would be the main crime, since the government doesn't necessarily recognize the individual faith a person adheres to, so an unwanted baptism would more than likely mean nothing on a legal level, unless, of course, there happened to be threats.

Killing an animal in an inhumane way.
