German dude. Still, despite all this, there are also many nice and redeeming qualities in him. Unlike many reactionaries, Oswald is... Sincere in his beliefs and diligently follows them. He is not a hypocrite, who would enforce strict religious law on common folks, while living a lavish lifestyle, and he actually tries to improve his country. He is nothing like our previous theocratic, fascist, corporate overlords, who imposed the religious fascism to genocide most of our people and strip our country of all natural resources, leaving only a resort and tax haven for elites. Inspired by king David he tries being like him. Either way, we are neutral on him. At least until the further notice"-Overboss Shawn Bjornson

I'm of the belief that Tansgar used certain connections to give him the story of a hopeless oddball, that ended up as the General of Sheredhia's armed forces. I'm not one to judge if my theory is true since that would be hypocritical as shady dealings are as common as needing to water to avoid dehydration in Century Bay. Henry's Mood: Judgmental

"Jasper J. Slick, charmed I'm sure. (Sighs) Another kvetsh-ing Alkdorian, no doubt, but I'm willing to hear the fellow out, I'm a diplomatic envoy after all."

"To be entirely honest, I don't think I've ever met anyone who even comes close to sharing the capacity for shameless ego-centrism that Jasper possesses. That's not a compliment. In fact, I have it on very good authority that Jasper would happily wine, dine, and toss me to the canines if it suited his bottom line, so I'm not going to give him the courtesy of pretending we're anything more than frosty deadlocked adversaries. Mr. Slick, let's face it, is anything but. I mean, does this philandering paskudneh genuinely believe he's earned some immutable right to the success he's achieved?"

"You know, I almost feel bad. I truly do. I might be a sentimental old accountant, but Jasper, naturally, will never be capable of loving or trusting others, and that goes for himself, too. Doesn't the constant paranoia of that oh-so-inevitable hit get tiring? Always keeping your thumb on the deadbolt? People like Jasper fail to realize there's more to life than death, taxes, and a fleet of private jets to mask your scent. The 'Imperial Way Doctrine'? Why don't we all just define it for what it really is: state-sanctioned political slaughter, both figuratively and literally."

"I've always been a loyal purveyor of capitalism, anybody who knows me can attest to that fact; but the socio-economic cesspool of inefficiency in which this tyrant has so carefully indoctrinated his followers to believe, only functions to redirect any natural downward distribution of power and wealth right back to his personal coin purse. It's true, maybe I'm being a little harsh, but I'm treating this as a cautionary tale of exactly what NOT TO DO when it comes to the manufacture of sustainable wealth. And I don't mean a seemingly endless cache of greenbacks and gold ascots like in Slick's case, I mean reliable books that balance more than just the credits and debits at hand, but also the natural volatility of business when the unwashed masses start tearing down the front door. Because as it stands right now, any friends he might have once had are probably a few armlengths away from whittling his skull with an unsharpened letter opener."

The most important thing is that it didn't make him fall down, but he was doing what babies are doing after falling down. He just got up and kept moving forward and finally got educated and came into power."

Either way, I can tell, that according to the data gathered on him, Sky Reavers and Lechia are not going to be friends now or in observable future, not until Borzywoj's rule ends that's for sure. Because our very way of life is against many of the values he supports with fierce conviction. He fought the oppressive government, and replaced it with something better off economically, but just as oppressive as it was. With even more restrictions on what can consenting adults do in the bedrooms. Right now, I will not state too much about him, until I double check the data about controversy, but the word "Controversal" is a rather mild term for him. “Speaking of Herr Bjornson, I do have rather positive things to say about him. It would come off as a surprise to him, I don't blame him. I'd be surprised too if someone who despises me does have something positive to say about me.”

“If I put aside his vices and aforementioned sinful customs, Shawn Bjornson is an upright man with noble intentions for all the oppressed peoples in the world. It is admirable of him to support many causes that will free the oppressed and the enslaved from their terrible masters; to tear up the roots from the very ground and destroy them absolutely. And no, I simply cannot overlook the fact that he is honest enough to deliver on his promises; to give freedom to the people he has liberated as promised.”

“Shawn Bjornson is heroic; he is honest, and he is noble. But remembering his vices, it is difficult to make him sound even more admirable. But his beliefs and actions are his own, and though I can judge him and criticize him (and he can do the same to me), I am not the one who is fit to change his viewpoints. I understand his beliefs and the actions he takes for those beliefs, but it does not mean that I agree with them. And this goes to all persons in prominent positions: I do not agree with your mindsets but I understand them nevertheless."

Anyway, from the start, he does seem to come prepared with a very good set of policies, along with its own executioners, or businessmen, I'd say. His feats afterward certainly do not do any justice in complimenting his later successes, for all the results I could see so far are wholly positive. Although, an obvious sore spot for me is the fact that at the same time, there seem to be no clear limits in regards towards his economic, and financial ventures, and I myself, despite not being a businesswoman or anything alike, am fairly certain that limitless things come with a very dangerous drawback. I wonder how that'd play out later on"

"Yan Sooyoung reminds me a lot of myself, despite some obvious political disagreements. The ideal despot: strong-willed, morally good, and being able to lead the nation by example. I'm of course also a huge fan of cults of personality, having crafted quite the illustrious one for myself. I do admire Stalin and Mao and their ilk, Sooyoung's communism seems to echo those ideals much more than communists in my time do. The All-Union Gospel is also very intriguing to me, it reminds me a lot of my own church. I predict a prosperous reign for Sooyoung, and I'm confident she'll prove me right."

Goody, Christ fucking Jesus! When low on creativity and inspiration turn to racism and ban! Extra attention seek! Be murderin savages and shit.

Double double points for a mysterious rise to power that isn't totally hinting that this bitch killed her own father, and perhaps entire bloodline to get the throne for herself, and to become the Empress of Darkness with rainbow characteristics.

Overall, Alice Lovefest is a soft cringe. She isn't the greatest individual ever born into existence, but she isn't worst and by her racial views. She is a moderate as I've seen much worse so you get an apathetic shrug from me."

It is so... surreal, I would give it that. It's just superbly weird, surreal, and something that you could dismiss and brush him off, but no, your mind keeps pulling you to read about him, because it makes you curious. So hey, he got me there, at the very least. The dossier is interesting, basic. There is something to be said about him lambasting others for the lack of imagination, when his characters have 2 or 3 dimensions... spatial dimensions, not character/writing dimensions. On the upside, as no-longer-faux-Goddess, I am not responsible for the creation of his world. Don't quit your daytime job. For goodness' sake, love, stop doing this to yourself. " ...

Of all manners of silliness I have seen throughout the multiverse... a Hazbin Hotel character claiming to be a god is up there. Number... 12, I'll put it at.

I can't really tell what you are. You're not omnipotent or intelligent enough to be a Yahweh, you're not competent or evil enough to be a Satan, so that puts you somewhere in between - with the Djinn and Lesser Gods of older mythologies. So, I think I will call you Dionysus. So, Mr. Dionysus, what exactly do you do with your powers? You give a random empire a superiority complex and encourage them to sodomize both each other and their supposed inferiors. Real pleasant. At least when my God gave the Jews the title of 'Chosen People' he had a long term plan in mind other than diddling young adults. Have some imagination. You're physically a GOD with the brain and goals of a mortal. You are Bruce Almighty, and yet, you obsess over a poorman's version of Rome. At least do something FUN, like let loose demons every once in awhile or cause insanity in random monarchs. And not the edgy kind of insanity your kind are used to, I mean the "Give a horse councillorship" kind of insanity.

All in all, you're boring, Dionysus. You're not good enough for me to empathize with your cause, you're not bad enough for me to have morbid curiosity, and you're not powerful enough for me to consider you an actual threat. I'm just gonna stick with my God, thanks."

AN: "Well... this one's apart of Valentine's Gang. So I suppose I have no right to be overly mean. Honestly, I am glad you are such a morally upstanding person. Liberating Auschwitz, Trying to save humans during an alien invasion, heck - anyone who fights Nazis is generally good in my book. With exception, but you are not. And frankly, I am glad its someone like you who hopped around universes. While I do hold a generally non-interventionist opinion on things such as the past, other planets, etc, I do also recognize that someone of your abilities could intentionally alter things in a way that would lead to suffering. Such as giving your Nazis weapons beyond their wildest imagination or slaughtering the children of Rapture. So, I am glad it was you and not someone with less than wholesome intentions.

I do have some points of critique. However, they are theological and political rather than personal. So don't take it personally. Honestly, I am glad you quit your job as pseudo-Goddess. We mortals are not mentally ready to be Gods. Sure, as with last time, you did pretty great for a mortal. But honestly... I feel like that if you kept on, you might have done something regrettable. In fact, you did do regrettable things and you had an unrelated mental breakdown from the multiverse' non-existence. I'm glad you decided to leave it to the LORD. My God is currently doing a much, much better job than you did. No offense, that's just the limitations of our mortal understanding of the universe. It's not like I'd do a better job. Well, I might. Can't do a bad job if you don't do your job!"

☐ Holy Federation of Stars ☐

We shall march through the storm, Jesus by our side.

In a galaxy where humans were lifeseeded on 12 planets, a federation with a ceremonial religious head of state has united 8 of them. Religious, Ethnic, and Political conflicts are practically an every day thing and the threat of alien invasion has caused paranoia and xenophobia among the population.

Wexas' attempt at FT. No funni powerwank/"sexy" aliens for me.

"What the Hell do we have here? This man represents much of my problems with the American-Anglo way of life. His church on paper? It doesn't sound bad, not at all. Being conservative, taking the Bible seriously, are all things I like. The issue arises in hypocrisy. A Christian clergyman being opposed to socialism despite claiming his church aids the poor? A Christian clergyman being so weak that he feels the need to repent just for finding a woman attractive? These are not qualities that will make the faith thrive.
