I have heard about this machine from John Mercer. And to see Clarissa for myself, I am both impressed and disappointed at the same time. I am impressed by the technology and weaponry that made her but however as stated, I am disappointed that her arsenal does not have price tag nor herself have the program to accept payment to deal with wannabe competitors to my business. It would have kept them nice and observers questioning if they want to fight this battle, when it is evident that any chances for victory is futile.

So much ruthless dedication and will to secure his dominance, all merely for the sake of lining his own pockets. What a waste of talent and resources. The talent is definitely there, I have to admit, and I respect him as much as I can respect any capitalist businessman. He could be a much greater asset to his people if he was made to direct his energy towards the state, instead of being free to squander his gains as he sees fit. It's a shame really. We could use more people like him.

I have little to comment on here. While I could skew my initial appraisal towards the negative based solely on the monarchic nature of her position, there simply isn't enough information available on her political stances to justify a proper assessment. A "national defense policy" could well mean simple military strengthening... or a regime of internal surveillance, coupled with foreign isolationism. Her trade policy is oriented towards her nation's allied and technically subservient states, but again - this tells me nothing. My overall opinion, if it can be termed as such, remains neutral - at the very least, until additional information on Her Majesty's method of rule and policy-making comes to light.

Dictator-backed dedication to absolute civil freedoms, ultrabureaucratic pseudo-socialism and heavily-armed neutrality. Fueled by PMT*/FanT nanopunk schizotech, eldritch red tape and snazzy neo-cold war aesthetics on a broken continent.

Still, reading up on him suggests he is particularly suited for such an inanely sociopathic task. I mean, his own biography specifically compares him to figures like Stalin and Genghis Khan, which certainly doesn't do him any favours in my book. And I'm pretty sure that the quote is from some evil gilded-age robber baron in a video game. Suffice to say, my dislike for such a figure is rather intense."

Rapture City

- In the underwater city, two roles have emerged from the City's ongoing civil war: the City Monitors who defend the peace and the Red Caps who fight against unjust systems. The city's infrastructure is crumbling under its own weight and kinship is snuffed by the paranoia of totalitarianism. Yet the people would be in for a surprise as their virtual overlord have died many years ago as the oppression continues under his name...
- Not an 1-1 exact replica of Bioshock lore and Rapture City. Only the city's atmosphere and setting is maintained.

"No, Anti-European laws will only piss the while dudes off and potentially sway them to fascist ideology. May I give ya' an advice? Good. I'd recommend ya' go Brezhnev's route and just put potentially dangerous opponents into mental asylum. Unleashin' the power of psychiatry at them. Deem em' too batshit insane to do their job and stash them away quietly. This will make your country look far better, than with those laws.

Besides, think about them for a moment. Imagine, that you are a leader of united Europe and you put in place anti-african laws. You'd think, that this is fascism... So, are Anti-European laws. If you really hate this fascist, do everything to prevent yourself from becoming like him. Stay pure and do not let this poison touch your heart. For Africa, for Communism, for civilization itself... remove those laws."-Shawn Bjornson in his attempt to persuade Emilio to remove anti-European laws.

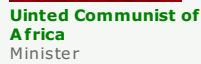

Double ninja

"Social superiors? Dude, we are all leaders, and as far as I know, Emilio ain't a vassal of anyone. Now why the hell I am sayin' this? All he wants is to return to feudalism, where 1% of rich exploit the rest of people. With him as the king of course. But in dream to be a king, first one should be a man! And I don't think, that he would be up to such a monumental task."-Shawn Bjornson
