NS players at least understand that there are things other than infantry on the battlefield. There's enough godmoddy tanks and planes and ships out there to prove that.

They also understand that one billion is larger than one million. (I hope)

NS players also forget that people actually need to crew tanks sometimes. So you'll get an RP that says "you can deploy a maximum of 5000 military personnel" so then someone will say they deploy 5000 infantry plus 100 tanks, forgetting that the tanks need 3 or 4 people to crew them depending on if they're Soviet or NATO designs.

unless you're hyperfuturistic and can just materialize supplies on the fly then yeah tanks will be VERY hard to maintain people just deploy tanks because tanks are cool

Cool, did you bring trucks with ammunition and people to drive those? Are you sure you want to use the Abrams? it's notoriously fuel inefficient you'd be better off with Leopard 2 or something. Oh you do want to use the Abrams? Ok I hope you brought like 500 trucks full of jet fuel to follow them and people to drive those trucks and I hope you like your entire advance stalling every couple hours to refuel.

honestly at this point logistics has made me want to cut out the middleman and just replace tanks with 2 men, a rope and a field gun.

The first part of the document discusses the importance of maintaining accurate records of all transactions, including sales, purchases, and expenses. It emphasizes the need for a systematic approach to record-keeping, such as using a ledger or accounting software, to ensure that all financial data is properly documented and organized.

The second part of the document focuses on the importance of regular financial reviews and audits. It highlights the need for businesses to conduct periodic checks of their financial statements to identify any discrepancies or errors, and to ensure that the records are up-to-date and accurate.

The third part of the document discusses the importance of maintaining proper documentation for all financial transactions. It emphasizes the need for businesses to keep all relevant documents, such as invoices, receipts, and contracts, in a secure and accessible location to support their financial records.

The fourth part of the document discusses the importance of maintaining accurate records of all financial transactions, including sales, purchases, and expenses. It emphasizes the need for a systematic approach to record-keeping, such as using a ledger or accounting software, to ensure that all financial data is properly documented and organized.

Of course if you're a large country it'll be easier to supply but that's the reason we don't see smaller nations using large amounts of tanks since they're difficult to supply

Just do what I do, copy and paste the stats of an RL weapon and reskin it, give it a different name, maybe tweak the stats a bit and you've got yourself whatever equipment you need.

At this point I'm not just writing stats for my vehicles used in War RP but simply mention what RL vehicles they're based on and give basic differences (like Fokker and Pfalz from Tzadzikistani civil war being copies of Su-57 and MiG-1.44/HIMAT/X-31 respectively). Simply because no one bothers to read these long factbook anyways.

I don't even change the name or stats of my RL weapons. It's not really going to matter in RP. And honestly, when you use all unmodified RL stuff nobody can say "nuh uh actually my tanks have hard kill APS I just didn't write it in my factbook your Javelin is useless lol"

FT nations that don't commit to being FT nations.

They would just throw in dark, evil knights and dragons into the mix.

So Iron Sky and Iron Sky: The Coming Race and all those wack conspiracy theories about Nazis setting up a colony on the Moon is what Mondbasis Achtzig revolves around. Also Wolfenstein. Edgy Nazi Space people with completely ridiculous explanation about how they came to power on the moon and stuff. At this point I have ideas that I have no idea how to execute it.

My personal one, that I have big problems with:
Alt history that just severs the history part.

Alternate history is based on reality. It is less like an amputation and more surgery: do it carefully, and minimize the things you have to change for it to happen, or at least make it plausible, and it's intriguing. Rip off the leg of the history, you just got a dead body on your hands.

It's like changing from Downfall, and changing major elements of it so it leads to the Simpsons.
