I mean, we can actually create a mathematical definition for evolution in terms of the evolutionary algorithm and then write code to deal with abstract instances of evolution, which basically equates to mathematical proof that evolution works. All that remains is to show that biological systems replicate in such a way as to satisfy the minimal criteria required for evolution to apply to them, something which has already been adequately shown time and again. At this point, we've pretty much proven that not only can evolution happen, it pretty much must happen since it's basically impossible to prevent it from happening.

Apparat got boring for me, too. Not really bad, just not interesting enough.

Soo all I have left in electronic is Solar Fields.

Sainkho Namtchylak-Music Mail to Tuva

If I think about it, she is probably one of my favorite female singers. She's incredible. Her range is great (I heard she has a 7 octave range), and her music is very experimental.
