Condemns (and commends) do absolutely nothing beyond putting a badge on your nation or region.

So yeah they're basically meaningless beyond serving as like trophies of recognition basically?

Tbh I still don't get Raid and Defense "gameplay". But eh, to each their own, even if that's the sole reason we have condemnation and commendation badges and resolutions.

Honestly, I don't care for either and just go with the majority vote.

I did kinda miss when we had actual resolutions in SC that actually had some impact like ones concerning nuclear weapons or military strength.

Granted, when I first started, there were like 1 or 2 that were specifically tailored to military power IN the SC vote, maybe. But since then it's all "condemn this" and "commend that" like damn... I really don't care if DaHoliestVillage is getting condemned for harboring raiders.

Lol my region is a condemned one for being a region for, well, Psychotic Dictatorships, and we wear that condemnation like it's a bloody badge. Pretty sure The Black Hawks, the only mates to have gotten two condemnations are also wearing them like they're medals.

I think I first created my nation at around 2014 (long before I was on NS), you'd be amazed at what was once canon back then. I still even have an outdated and moribund wiki on Shoutwiki which I have abandoned due to spambots in favour of Miraheze, and I think there's still an article of said nation on Sonic Fanon Wiki. I think it was around 2020-2021 when my nation's canon started to become what it is today. All in all, the Sonic Fanon Wiki article depicts the nation as it was at around 2014-2016, the Shoutwiki wiki depicts the nation as it was around 2016-2020, and the Miraheze wiki depicts the nation as it is since 2020.

I don't either but I just think it's interesting how an entire major component of this game originated by the players using a feature (the United Nations and endorsing) not for the purposes it was designed for.

Issue is the majority of the playerbase just votes no and doesn't read the bills on stuff concerning nukes or militaries. If the WA was more interactive I feel like we'd have more interesting bills get proposed more often.

Actually I'm confused by the 'actual resolutions in SC that actually had some impact like ones concerning nuclear weapons or military strength.' statement.

Like that's never been a thing? The SC was specifically created for commends/condemns and liberations AKA the shit that doesn't have any effect on your nation's stats (and also so people wouldn't complain by letting you have both a GA and a SC vote up at the same time instead of, for example, having to wait for a SC resolution to finish its voting before your GA resolution could go up for vote).

I mean I know just last year they added the whole declaration feature to the SC, but those also don't do anything. It's just...declarations.

I still have unfinished factbooks in text files on my computer that date back to 2006. Part of me always goes "hey, I could still finish that one someday" whenever I see them. It is a problem.

I've a similar problem; even though I have a ton of unfinished things (some from up to three years ago), for some reason I cannot bring myself to concentrate enough on them to completion.

And that's not even taking into account the multiple retcons I've done in the process, which may as well be a cliché in itself.

I have similar problems, and someone suggested that it's consistent with ADHD. Unfortunately, for attempted self-treatment, apparently indica (which is what I've been using) doesn't help much, it just makes me sleepy. Which is good too, I haven't had a night where I stay up past midnight in a while. Apparently a sativa is what you want for focus, but I haven't been able to find any hemp that specifies which one it is, and weed is out both because I have two months to go on it and because I want to have supervision for my first time since I've heard it could be good to have, so I can't vouch for if THC does anything for concentration. Never tried adderall because I don't really want to get caught trying to buy adderall.

So basically, cannabis is a big maybe for helping with a possibly-but-uncertain-ADHD-like-thing.

I have noticed I've been able to focus enough on new stuff, so maybe just break up larger factbooks into smaller ones?

Leaf water good. Bean water bad. David Ricardo was on to something and so was Eugene Stoner.

Only the trends are canon, not individual stats. If you want to get angry very quickly, I recommend Twitter.

Tbh that would be nice. Shame it will never happen.

Also, another cliché:

PMT/FT nations having walkers or mechs. Like... Why is that a common theme? "You get a mech! You get a mech! EVERYONE GETS A MECH!"

Meanwhile when I think PMT/FT I'm thinking "funky cool tanks, advanced kinetic weapons, maybe even space ships" since the suspension of disbelief can only be stretched so far.

Tbh I blame that on how crappily the forums handle images. On discord usually, large images are crushed down to a smaller size and you can open it up in full in a browser. On the forums it's forcefully set to its given dimensions, even if there is a height limit. And then imgur doesn't let you edit it down to crush the image down without turning it into a hyper-compressed mess.

I primarily use Imgur for my images, and it has a resize feature that allows me to scale down images so that they aren't taking up the entire screen. Used that for my flags in my factbooks. Wonder what these people are using that won't let them do that...

I wouldn't know because I've just been using paint and/or GIMP to crop the specific part I want to show, resize it down to no more than like 250x250 or so, then upload it to imgbb.

It's just, that doesn't seem like a hard concept. It just seems like some people are lazy and don't want to go through the tiny effort to make a portrait suited for forum replies if they really want to use an image.
