Apparently the entirety of the human population has been removed from Earth, and the planet has been reverted entirely to a pre-human state. I'm absolutely certain that's not true, since, yknow, billions of tons of molecular plastics literally coating the entirety of the planet and constituting a new geological epoch is proooooobably impossible to reverse without even further irrevocably changing the Earth. I guess they just went for mostly-pre-human.

I've learned that it's a space station ruled by Bertie Price, a freighter captain-turned-sheriff of the wild West sort, who resembles Charles Darwin.

My nation - which is pretty much just a unified Korea with some extra territory - represents my real views, as does pretty much anything I say on the forums. NS stats only broadly representative. Feel free to call me Q&K, Quartia, or any other nickname. Member of LITA

Miranda-22 is a supply station... ~~where are its c-Cannons?~~ originally owned by what I can only assume were surveyors scouting for mining spots on behalf of those beholden to a "Colonial Authority".

You know you don't say Space England, but with a name like that, I am just going to say Space England.

Unfortunately, the Space Station was found to inhabit a mostly worthless area of space which is honestly kind of both easy and hard to believe. It's space it's got a whole lot of nothing, so not every start system is going to be a winner when it comes to natural resources, but I mean it couldn't be impossible to find at least a few places to mine a few piss poor rocks and sell em for exorbitant prices at some random shopping mall back home, noting that they are "space rocks", despite living in a post-space travel world someone gullible is gonna buy it... metaphorically and literally.

Nowadays it's just a hideout ~~without guns!?~~ for less than stellar individuals and an old man with a gun if ~~the old man gets a gun where is the station's guns~~ ~~kiu!?"~~

Aight but real talk the ColAuth doesn't particularly care about investing in spacefaring combat and since it has a monopoly on space it directs the technological progress of humanity in space. As such there ain't any space guns chonkier than PD lasers (which the station has one of, though it's nonfunctional) and personal firearms at the point in the setting. Obviously that changes between 2463 and 2995, but at this point that's the state of affairs. And canonically, Bert keeps all the station's guns in a box that he has the key to.

Comerciante

It is implied that the Comerciante Family Corporation was, to a certain degree, behind the beginning of the Third World War, having lost control of their creation when a chain reaction turned a presumably manageable and profitable localised conflict into a system-spanning total war.

Poland revolted against the Soviet Union, took control of the Warsaw Pact, helped the Soviets against other rebels because they 'begged' for Poland to help, then bought nukes and land from the Soviets, all while somehow still having 'cold'/negative relations with the Soviets.

The motto of their forces is: "The Dream of the People, Our Fortress Secure!"

Our nation is Poland, but there was a great Nazbol revolution, which overthrew the PZPR and freed Poland from USSR, in 1993. The Iron Curtain still exists, but it has changed its borders.
