The Capitalistia-Nuclearus Byzantium empire leaders get really drunk and invade Mongolia because they were disturbing their peace by throat singing

The island of the Galapagos and the main power of South America controlling the West of South America. Militaristic and authoritarian with a troubled past and an uncertain future with stability at an all time low due to a lost war and unpopular occupiers.

The Catgirl Republic continues to build closer ties with the capuchin with the opening of schools teaching the languages and tongues utilized by both polities. The Catgirl Aerospace Traversal Security Organization (CATSO) has finalized the formation of the Catgirl's colony on the moon of Saturn, Titan. In a referendum by the small but growing populace of Titan by the mixed population of Catgirls and a small number of ethnic Martians, the Titan Republic is formed as an autonomous polity within the Catgirl Republic, however, fiscal policy and suzerainty remain in control by the Catgirl Republic due to the small size of Titan and its inability to defend itself and the necessary supplies it needs from the Catgirl state.

The Republic's military remains well prepared in case of aggression from surrounding Martian factions. However, relative peace reigns within the Catgirls as they focus on the wellbeing of their state hoping to remove the sins and crimes from the Martians due to their experiments that created their race. Massive developments continue to be made in the underground infrastructure of the Catgirls, more underground cities are made which grow in population from cloned Catgirls and the immigration of Martians fleeing from the war-torn factions of the planet.

Titan grows as a colony, its incredible conditions for the settlement of a civilization prove it to be a valuable asset to the Catgirls in closer connection to their allies on Earth, which at the moment only remains with the capuchin and his polity. However, a squadron of space-exploring Catgirls of CATSO during an expedition to study the atmosphere of Earth—mostly concerned about the Kepler Syndrome—the spaceship used by the squadron ends up crashing with space debris, causing them to crash land on Earth.

As the ship passes into the Earth's stratosphere, the ship captain jerks the small ship's flight stick and uses the remaining functions of its afterburners to land the ship in the Pacific Ocean. Things seem safe and so the crew begins attempts to make contact with the Catgirl embassy at the capuchin's island, however, the ship is lifted up by a wave of water and hits a sand bar which damages the engine and remaining functional parts of the ship immobile.

Prayers and patience pass through the Catgirl crew as they continue making contact with the embassy. But they are cut off as green-uniformed soldiers arrive and surround their ship. The Catgirl captain identifies the crew as an exploration squadron of the Catgirl Republic, a foreign country in space, but the soldiers arrest them anyway.

One of the squadron members, M'yni'ah notes the strange society developed in Hawaii within the city of Honolulu. It's very militaristic in many aspects. The military seems to have established a permanent military government on the island. She spends weeks in prison with the others as they continue awaiting aid from the Catgirl government, and through talks with the soldiers, they eventually learn that Hawaii has become a militaristic martial law government after the loss of contact with its mainland government.

Through tense negotiation with Hawaii, the prisoners are liberated. But M'yni'ah can't feel anything but sympathy as she looks at civilians squatting on the streets in poverty and the broken infrastructure littering the streets. This wasn't home for people.

With enough talk and debate. M'yni'ah reaches an audience with the parliament of the Republic. She gets into a passionate and persuasive speech of the duty of the Catgirl Republic to help defend the watered down and unprotected peoples on Earth. Believing that if the Catgirls managed to survive and succeed as a race created by brutal experiments and horrible treatment by the Martians, then the Catgirls have an obligation morally to help the people suffering on Earth.

M'yni'ah walks out of the halls of parliament with her heart still torn but hopeful for the government to accept this plea.

She waited a week, then two, then three.

Then parliament and the executive government agreed.

M'yni'ah's heart lifted up in joy.

They were going to Earth.

Through much strife and reform, Hawaii now has formed the Republic of Hawai'i (Hawaii). And a bright hope looms for the island. Reflections are made in its history. But M'yni'ah hopes for them to succeed this time with the aid of a fellow ally from space.

It takes a while but the martial law ends and the military finds itself no longer needed for administrative duties. An attempt to establish a junta by more extremist and high-ranking American military officers was made, but Hawaiian civilians of all colors banded together and fought back, resecuring Honolulu and ending the attempt of the attempted junta coup.

Now Hawaii remains growing. Having finally taken full administration of the remaining islands in the Hawaiian archipelago and also annexing the Johnston Atoll and Midway Islands with some aid from the Catgirls. But there's barely any population in these new lands as most of the people died from starvation or were left to find better homes elsewhere. Only a handful of people remained.

The Catgirls take full obligation in protecting the Republic of Hawai'i but they don't control its administrative or fiscal functions whatsoever. But they do have treaties with it.

The former Siberian uprising and Siberia is legally succeeded by us Chemgotans following its abrupt absorption, except this time the Chemgotans use elastic guerrilla warfare but is only located in the east of Siberia, not caring to take the rest of the region over due to its size. However Russians are angry, and Chemgotans are also angry and want to continue being independent, so thus a war begins for Russia attempting to reconquer and reincorporate us as apart of all Russia.

But despite their strength, they are hindered due to the region's vast amount of mountain ranges and forest, which make it pretty much useless for use of armour and mobile units which Russia so heavily relies on for their wars, as a result guerrilla campaigns ensue by Partisan and Militia units behind enemy lines and the main professionalised and organised Chemgotan Defence Force begins a series of feint assaults and elastic offensives throughout the region, so the Russians with their supplies and logistics are stretched thin and with anti-air systems also maintained.

The air war begins to end in a stalemate with Chemgotan Air Force and some captured vessels comprising the Chemgotan Naval Force begin to exercise Chemgotan air and naval claims, for the Navy, wolfpacks and reliance on small hit and run attack craft such as PT boats aid in destroying larger Russian warships within the Pacific and Sea of Okhotsk to ultimately foil Russian naval planning and to prevent a blockade within those areas as the Kuril Islands are seized. The Chemgotan and Russian conflict begins to deteriorate further and the war on the ground, mainly from the Chemgotans is by entrenching themselves to halt Russian advances and to dispatch the Russian units, many would surrender, and many are demoralised and as a result of this, many Russians begin to mutiny and desert from the Russian Army.

And thus, the war continues with the battling states of East Yakutia and North Khabarovsk being maintained and successfully fended from Russian counterattacks which were dismantled through irregular warfare attacks.

Washington sponsors a coup that overthrows the democratically elected government of Chile. What follows is a brutal decade-long rule under a military junta that has killed and forcibly disappeared hundreds of thousands civilians and dissidents. In addition to forcing the implementation of laissez-faire economic policy which has only greatly damaged the economy and widened economic inequality

The capuchin's facility on Ceres is in fact much more; it is the center of the capuchin cloning facility. In addition to further protective measures to the original capuchin's island, the cloned capuchins are now being educated on both centers on Ceres and on Mars(which still exists due to being retconned back into existence). The new Capuchin Polity has now expanded into the outer solar system, with aerostat cities lush with banana trees being established in the clouds of Jupiter and Saturn.

In addition, the Capuchin Polity extends a free migration pact to the Catgirl Republic in order to ease the situation in Hawaii and elsewhere.
