Okay, I'm sorry, I shouldn't be breaking the minds of someone else with interdimensional talk. Anyway, you seem... pretty nice, I guess? You have a really, really tragic backstory, and I guess I should be rather sad that for not being able to fix you, or get you out of the predicament. # WORD of The President

Not every so-called "progressive" is truly adherent to that label. President Smith has many good ideas of course. The work towards stronger human rights for LGBT people, the commitment to public services, the cutting of corporate subsidies, and the strengthening of green legislation is all commendable. However if I voted for him I would feel disappointed and cheated. The start of his presidency seemed as if it were sincerely anti-war and an era of peace and building up something better. Yet history showed his hand and at pressure he mobilized the war machine and fought two wars that resulted in, practically, a colony and a puppet government under Nacrad.

I cant read his heart, perhaps he is sincere in his belief it was all necessary. However, I would have felt disappointed and my vote wasted had I voted for the guy.

"I have always said, and I shall continue to insist, that this recent trend of leadership by the people is doomed to fail in a blazing disaster- and, if ever I were required to support My prophecy with some example as to why it should happen, I would point no further than this political chameleon- the so called 'Prime Minister' Daryush-Hosseinzadeh- who so cruelly betrays his allies for an instant of imagined opportunity. Whereas even others of his ilk seem content to wallow in ideological warfare- I imagine them as children, fighting while their mothers are away- he presents himself as some sort of political mastermind, above the squabbles of his betters, always one step away from whatever fleeting fancy serves as his ultimate goal. I would suggest that he would be better served working as a highwayman, but I suppose even they would refuse his as too dishonorable and shifty. # WORD of The President

One gets the impression I'm far too harsh in these. Cala Windham Hawkeye is a technocrat who seems to take pride in his ability to design, make, and sell "more efficient" drones. Arms and military manufacturers are the most terrifying of mercantile forces.

That all said, I look at the people and tribe this man leads and I see sincerity. Among his people I see him standing up for their labor and placing them as the true powers and champions that build society. I see a man that combats mindless gender chauvinism in his ranks. I see a man who seeks to uplift the education of all men and make all of society truly intellectual.

As in all things, I see complexity. That said, I wouldn't put his name on a ballot!
