"Emperor Oswald and his unimaginatively named country seem to embody many of the traits I find most odious in the German character. I have some sympathy for him, being thrust into a position of such great responsibility at such a young age and with his country in the midst war to boot, and I can concede that he seems to be dealing with his circumstances with admirable maturity. Nonetheless, I detest fascistic regimes. Their ideology is fundamentally incompatible with the Christian faith and the character of the English race. I pray that when the war is concluded, the emperor will see the light and steer his country in a more constructive direction than his predecessors."

Oh yeah, sure, people like His Majesty and his bulging muscles are probably the type that wanna strangle and kill me so bad considering my job. But other than that, despite being natural enemies, we are facing surprisingly similar problems. What draw the line between us is our respective response to them I mean, Deccan issues and His Majesty's predictable reaction to it almost exactly mimics that of the disastrous 1950-1960s era in Dwipantara: there are some societal division, so the righteous King From Jupiter decided that obviously, He and His ideals alone is the ONLY one that can best run the country. Which, as you probably might've guessed, ended in disaster. Although admittedly, His Majesty did seemed to pull it off quite well, and did successfully led a fractured camel society turn into a united camel society. Clearly, a great achievement. Claps

Then again, I cannot discount the apparent socio-technological stagnation that has descended throughout his realm, which probably the only reason why His Majesty is able to pull off a 1960s idea of governing in 2061. Is the stagnation His Majesty's fault? Probably not. But then again, beneficial reforms, discourse, and ideas -the reason political parties exist in the first place- that contradicts his narrow worldview had always been stomped in favor of His Majesty's unchecked absolutist governance, leading to a slow and boring degradation.

Sips mung bean juice Sure, His Majesty's version of Islam is closer to the NU secular moderates than the Khilafah flat-earthers, so it's not that bad. But it's still bad. Very unfortunate that the sub-continent is locked in this mud of Islamist stagnation, hostile to objective evaluation. A society running on a terrible, unreformable system that only caters to a specific portion of the population -leaving behind the rest as second-class- is an unjust society destined to fail. Oh, don't believe me? Give me six months, and I'll make life here a colorful mess.

I ain't into this furry thingy myself, but I state this clear, I don't hate him because he is one of those. So far I don't have any particular feelings on him, but this will change, once I know him a lil' bit better." -Shawn Bjornson Skyhooked is MT/PMT with a few FT elements. Military is factbook only. NS stats are mostly non canon.

In front of the Patron, there are ten men who willingly gave up their dignity to be slapped by the demigod himself. Where the world revolves around the existence of this one man. They lined up neatly in tuxedos where they are slapped by the Patron in this odd theatre play known as the Theatre of Cruelty. One slap, two slap, three slap, four slap, with their cheeks getting progressively redder to the delight of the audience. Worse things have been done by the Patron but for once he didn't shred any work of art...

"Shawn Bjornson is a "good" man and could have been a good futurist if he weren't so bounded by the spook and social construct that are moral restraints. As a syndicalist confederacy, Patagonia would remain a cordial friend of Skyhooked for years to come if he were to tolerate it. Our levels of hedonism are different but let's just say we trump them in every regard on whatever they tried to achieve in their anarchist utopia.

Revolutions are always bloody, Bjorn, for the oppressors only know violence as their violence. You, o' road

The Avant-Gardist State of Patagonia ~~~ Gauchos and Mapuches, orgies and parties, avant-garde art, futurism, syndicalism, the New Man, general strikes, the glorification of violence, spiritual nationalism, esoteric occultism, CIA spooks, Spartanian homosexuality, public sodomy, and more

Triomphe du Surréalisme (1968)

- There are many things said about Patagonia but few actually know what goes on behind the Andes mountains. Tales of human depravation and man's inner darkest self run wild. A place where avant-garde culture flourish and the artist don't fear the censor. Where all live bold and free under the gaze of the Patron. Yet all dreams will come to an end soon...

"So, apparently, calling this human a 'lunatic' is a gross understatement. He obtained his 'psychic powers' by *ing one of his teacher's students before killing his teacher next? I mean, what the * this human is making Odin and Thor look like saints to every living thing in the Nine Realms. Well, I'm not gonna lie on the fact that my ex is unsurpassably more powerful than he imagines himself to be, since...well...my ex is gifted in seiðr magics so I can imagine a confrontation between him and Liv will be won by the one who did not murder their teacher and screwed their student. I mean Liv."
