It's 2030, cities are getting bigger and more crowded as they struggle to expand in order to match the population growth. We see here a part of highly industrialized city in the middle of the night. It was nightfall, but it was not dark... it was never completely dark in such a busy city.

Their feed shows us all just how hard it is to get a good custom banner going, and that they felt so overjoyed from finally getting it right that they went to the first board about banners to bring some attention to their hard work /skip

lol...seriously, it's such a complicated process making banners here, I wish there was just a simple way to know what the resizing process would do to your image without having to go through a 4-step dance each time
