I think I've been through like three different mass formatting updates at this point. Sometimes I honestly envy people who can just copy-paste a wiki template and stay happy with it, they don't have to deal with the trouble of beating your brain cells against a block of BBCode until it gets pretty colours and fancy text arrangements. It probably helps inflate my upvote counts, at least, and seeing the funny numbers go up is one of my few sources of validation these days. Only problem is I honestly have no clue how to translate my newest design over to Evehxhas in a satisfactory way, so I'm kinda just stuck here with my "old" format that I don't really like anymore until I hopefully figure something out.

I relate with this way too much. It's gotten to the point that I've re-vamped my format more than I've actually WRITTEN WORDS to express my nation.

I tried to spice the narrative up with Tohorin but failed as I'm either too cryptic or F7ers have the attention span of goldfishes OR they act like Enlightened Atheist smartasses who are euphoric to point out supposed errors and don't seem to get that myth-history goes above and beyond logic and objectivity, by MT standards that is. Or maybe it's all of those combined.

Excepting typos and ret-cons I forgot to delete, the contradictions in Tohorin's history are intentional.

see, people may disagree with me, but i prefer when factbooks are just the facts, ma'am. idk maybe it's cuz i know that the term factbook comes from the cia world factbook, which is exactly what it sounds like, a collection of information about nations of the world by the cia, the actual thing isn't like super detailed about everything in real world nation although i suppose the difference comes down to if you prefer character vs informative rp, i'm on this site to world-build and stuff, i've got less than zero interest in having any rp'd interactions between characters i created with characters other people created.

yeah, fair, and the format's definitely useful for just conveying information like that if that's your goal. i mean, there's a reason wikipedia is as popular as it is, ig. to each their own, at the end of the day.

i would really hope you wouldn't have to tell people that cultures intermingling is something that happens naturally and requires active pressures to prevent but then again entire ideologies are based off the idea that nationality and culture are inherently tied together, ig. so i guess it is necessary.

I haven't finished transcribing any of my notes into factbooks, so I'm hardly an authority in this discussion, but my plan is to copy my regular factbooks to an enemy puppet and add a disgusting amount of bias. I've been going back to my posting history on F7 on this account and my god I remember why I made the rant dispatch, seriously, there's so many people who assume that this nation is just real life except two 'sworn enemies' are united together, then there's the responses which tantamount to 'russia America unite, is unique', it just gets on my nerves seeing some people just shrug off the fact that the only reasons they became best buds were because

- Both suffered Coups
- Both had their Presidents replaced
- Both used to b superpowers until 2013
- Both of them still carry the grudges of 2013

Like come on man, I don't need to listen to how Russia-America is evil and a puppet for imperialism, I'm just here to listen to Frank Klepacki music and write some stuff. Christ on a stick.

I pulled a similar "oopsie" in my first year too, said "intensive agriculture in Teotihuacan" in a presentation but I wanted to say "intense agriculture"; looking back, I think saying "They were really good at agriculture, they produced a lot of corn. A lot. Nobody knows corn like them." would've been a better statement than the I word.

This is even more ironic knowing that proto-Romanticists like Herder and the von Humboldt brothers contributed a lot to moral/cultural relativism, valuing cultural diversity of non-Western people and they more-or-less set out the ground works for not-intentionally-racist and fairly unbiased anthropology in the future despite always going on about the metaphysical essence of volk. Oh wait, you said "massive moustache".

Those people who clearly have never actually learned what an ideology is actually like so they just make a weird strawman ideology.

That's why I put a bunch of stuff into a blender and created Holmism so I couldn't fall into that trap.

Description: I'm an MT Sweden under a fictional far-right ideology known as Holmism.

Basically Modern Sweden + "Folk, I gevär" + Lev Gumilov + Rampant Factionalism + Political Tension + Swedish Neo-Nazism + Sprinkles of Wacky.
