"I can respect war fatigue and a Soldier's shock, even if it's coming from a spawn of the deepest underworld. What I can't respect is fighting for the so-called 'rights' of the very people that gave you that War Fatigue. And I retain the usual reservations about this so-called Kmer's other political positions, not to mention the nature of her rule."

"Such a supposedly fearsome warrior who paradoxically panders to weaklings. So much for her imposing reputation. Shouldn't the strong dominate the weak, not cater to them? Kamille's past feats in battle are forever tarnished by her current disastrous reign as Kmer. Bending over backwards to please useless degenerate dregs makes you look just as deplorable as them. For that I label Kamile as a pathetic and enfeebled coward who has no business leading a nation, and would have been better off dying in that inconsequential war she is so tormented by."

"It would it appear that this man is nearly the opposite kind of soldier that I just described. King Adelbrand has that stern and unwavering sort of feel to him, which are among the ideal characteristics for a warrior to possess. His military exploits are impressive I suppose, founding his own Kingdom and all. He, unlike others, do not work to accommodate weaklings, but rather slay and conquer them, as it should be. For that he has my respect, and I wish him well. May he spread civilization far and wide, and make heathens tremble."

She and the rest of the Godular leaders should consider that, when we offer a trade deal, as we are capable of obtaining rare or unusual goods. If I somehow manage to negotiate the trade deal. Or... I can offer her some valuable data on certain people and organizations. We have many dossiers ready. Either way, I regard Godular as a potential trade partner. It's hard being the first man on the moon. A Slav no lest. With shaving cream on his face; Titov shaved his beard while leaving stubble at his wake. While carefully adjusting his mustache, a status of symbol of Slavic men, he hummed "Also sprach Zarathustra" before leaving to work in the lunar quarries again.

"Raising a glass of rakija in a toast"

"Gentlemen and comrades, I think my position is quite clear on fascists. Do you know why we traveled to space, right comrades? It was to escape fascism and it seems like fascists are so determined to preserve their genetic purity that they have no choice but to commit incest! Like those Dirlwanger folks. But I understand that he has no say in the matter of his birth like all of us."

"As for Monsieur Marresont, even I as a loyal follower of Tito and the party could recognize that the man has merit. I wouldn't say it publicly as I don't want any trouble with the SDS. Marresont is a caring husband and father. A man with a hot-headed and violent impulse like any proud Slavic man. The role of a man is to be a caring father to his children, even Ustasas and Chetniks knew this, and God forgive their souls. He will do his job well. Speaking of caring, that was a nice-landed punch."

"I have been reading the available information on Commander Titov with great interest. While the science is admittedly beyond me, the achievement of piloting a craft into space, and to another heavenly body no less is monumental, both for him and his homeland. It would appear that the Commander initially considered himself beholden to his nation's distant bureaucracy first and foremost, but he has since come to prioritize the well-being of his fellow cosmonauts. On top of that he has helped his fellow men and women transcend the restrictions of ethnic divides as they work together to build a functioning society on a new world. Overnight, Le Patron effectively became a warlord of his Patagonian domain. Surrounded by child soldiers rescued from Angola and Mozambique; Le Patron in fatigues and berets walked the aisle in order to conduct a ceremony that would induct the children into Patagonian society. Plastering their foreheads with his saliva as Le Patron made it known that they are his children.

Patagonia is now at a state of perpetual chaos as the Funhouse of South America. The children will come to grasp that Le Patron's world is their world.

"Who even is Ludolf but a mere expy for Adolf Hitler? Lebensraum, militarization, the Enabling Act; I have heard these terms before and they are all ingrained within the German mindset. The Enabling Act is such a fine political maneuver when you infiltrated the parties and there's no doubt that it would be "Crossing the Rubicon" moment for Germany. Really, without the Hitlerian aspects of his regime, what even is Ludolf? But reports about the zombies that my ascended mind have been receiving will bode well with me. It is humanity's fate to evolve to another higher life form which are... Nazi zombies."

A true revolutionary would have done away with representative democracy and constitutional monarchism, and ascend to a higher realm of governance which is absolute direct democracy of the masses. I dislike the holier-than-thou personalities which exhumers from her circle without having the ability to grasp the bigger picture as well."

"But her heretical stance is a fine one. Gods are cruel in creating us without our consent and shaping the world as the Gods see fit against human (and vampire) interests. She gives off an aura of hubris and I could commend her for it. Yes, let us curse the Gods and do away with human faith. Aimlessness will accelerate the process of bringing about a Futurist society."

The Avant-Gardist State of Patagonia ~~~ Gauchos and Mapuches, orgies and parties, avant-garde art, futurism, syndicalism, the New Man, general strikes, the glorification of violence, spiritual nationalism, esoteric occultism, CIA spooks, Spartanian homosexuality, public sodomy, and more

Triomphe du Surréalisme (1968)

- There are many things said about Patagonia but few actually know what goes on behind the Andes mountains. Tales of human depravation and man's inner darkest self run wild. A place where avant-garde culture flourish and the artist don't fear the censor. Where all live bold and free under the gaze of the Patron. Yet all dreams will come to an end soon...
- Not expecting an essay. Just a couple of sentences that shows that you know my work well enough "For Frau Hoffmeister... of course, I would say that I prefer her as much as she prefers us -- not really. But that's what's so great about her, an almost independent spirit, an almost dignified soul and an almost shrewd administrator... she has this excellent ability to make anyone sigh in contemplation with her oratory skill: "why am I still listening?" kind of oratory skill."

*"Today, today! Ladies and gentlemen.
We witness the true essence of futurism.
Neither mere man nor mortal concept.
This is the beginning of the end.
He has conquered reality itself!*

*Violent past becomes violent presence.
And onto this future of black clouds on red skies,
He will take the future to his people.
Life fast and incoherent, and we only exist once.
Throw away the cross we bore this instance!*

*Blood curdling, mind bending.
Unto the canvases of life, he splatters.
True definition of sounds and colors.
And in the fashion of any maddened artist,
His only true terror is existence."*

PMT/Early FT - Decopunk. Zitravgrad is a crowned republic in a planet somewhere else in the universe. The formerly wartorn nation keeps a facade of normalcy and order while enjoying the societal and cultural decadence that marks the new Roaring Twenties. The paranoid authoritarian government tries its best to uphold order in the face of uncertainty, while its people want nothing more than a breathing space. A deal that works, but maybe not in the long run. |
