Sufjan Stevens - The Predatory Wasp of the Palisades Is Out to Get Us!

My new physics teacher listens to music during class and was playing Illinois. Reminded me that I like what I've heard from Sufjan and should listen to Illinois in full.

I bet he'll choose Chris de Burgh next... no, maybe Chris de Burgh? NAH. Definitely Chris de Burgh, his stuff is way better than Chris de Burgh's. If I was him, I'd have a tough time choosing.

Nostalgia Critic review The Room.

If that doesn't count, something called "Space Meditation".

He's already acknowledged his limited musical tastes. But I really think he should expand them, I find it really fun and fulfilling.

"De Dødes Kor" by Nortt

The best song on the album. Translates to "The Choir of the Dead" if I remember right.

The Honey Trees-Don't Fear

Probably my favorite from them. I find this song peaceful and beautiful. Which, honestly, sometimes the peaceful songs for me, even if they aren't sad songs, are the one's that can make me the saddest. That might seem weird, but it just puts me into this relaxing 'trance' state that can be the state of mind I think about stuff the most, and usually the not-so-good stuff. It didn't help I was just looking at a picture of my sweet old dog that died earlier this year....
