COUGH COUGH why do you think it's been almost a week since I made this nation and only just now started posting with it

Because I didn't want to have a completely blank lore and be like 'Hi I made a nation that actually is closer to my own views than Gandor is' but there was fuck all actually written about it so you wouldn't know what the hell those 'own views' actually are.

The way I sound it makes it sound like 'post-fft' nations are memetic hazards though, lmao.

That actually may not be far off

Wonder if RBI still thinks that the NS mods permabanned him because he was autistic and not because of his constant rule-breaking.

I don't think that man ever really got into the habit of thinking. Admittedly, the thing they finally DOSed him for was pretty dumb compared to the things they -should- have DOSed him for.

I also assume he never got around to "taking the mods to bloody English court." Either way, his country literally exploding into volcano eruptions at the sight of a GWO + Allied fleet was one of the most memorable things to happen for me on this site and I've incorporated something similar into the more in-depth non-NS version of the Federation.

I don't know who that is or what happened to them, but that description by itself is stellar.

Imagine someone basing their entire country on lolicon (every named character was a loli anime girl with a, usually up-skirt, picture to go along with them,) mutating vague anime concepts into bizarre superweapon designs (e.g. aforementioned drill-tipped RPG warheads,) and then picking fights with entire alliances of superpowers based on the faith that these weapons and sheer weaboo fanaticism will carry the day, because he doesn't think anyone's going to check him on it.

Then, imagine that he throws a fit and claims everyone is bullying him for being autistic when the expected result occurs, threatens to sue the mods for punishing him for these tantrums and posting pervy loli pictures, and that this goes on through several iterations of his account before he gets labeled delete-on-sight, to which he responded to with several change.org petitions and repeated threats of legal action. This went on for the better part of a decade. The aforementioned volcano incident occurred when an alliance I headed at the time launched a huge multinational invasion force that outnumbered his entire military several times over; he basically went "VOLCANOS ERUPT, KILLING EVERYONE IN THE COUNTRY AND THE INVADING IFA TROOPS" before reviving one of his previous countries that the mods had specifically instructed him not to, which was the final nail in the coffin of Ryou.

IMO Weapons of Mass Destruction like nukes, god rods or other megabombs are really boring from a writing perspective. Maybe once if you want to write a more horror oriented piece, but anything more than that is just overstaying their welcome. Especially if they get used like firecrackers by some users.

Giant Robots are far cooler. Screw you Square Cube Law! Have two mechas fight each other uno en uno!
Or have colossal eldritch creatures do the destruction, that stuff's FUN!

Just bring it to its logical conclusion - a Pacific Rimstyle battle with hundreds of Mechs and giant monsters duking it out in the middle of future Tokyo

If you want to write horror stuff, do bioweapons. The mass hysteria caused by COVID-19 shows how even relatively benign diseases (when compared to outright tailor-made diseases, like a hypothetical airborne ebola) terrify the shit out of people.

maybe I should just put SCP-217 into my lore

I don't know putting SCPs in your lore seems to be overdone. I think there was one nation that had a army full of SCPs at one point.

SCP stuff is really overrated these days...

SCP hasn't been good for nearly a decade; it was already as cancerous as the rest of EPIC LULZ NYANCAT era internet culture, but once the games came out and it got mainstreamed, a bunch of reddit-tier troons got involved, replacing a lot of the original folks, and it somehow got even worse. "Creepypasta" as a whole has never consisted of particularly good writing.

But you are right. That, and a bunch of blatant self-inserts/inserts of cringy edge OCs.

I love SCP stuff, and I don't really mind self inserts or "cringy" OCs. People can have fun if it's not hurting anyone.

Doesn't mean they are above criticism, though.

Ngl with modern SCP, very few of the SCPs are actually unique and frightening. The SCP universe can be a setting for good stories, like that one animated series on youtube, and that one with the plague doctor that I can't remember the name of. But they aren't good just because they are set in the SCP universe, it's stuff like character writing that elevates them. A lot of SCPs don't really have that going for them.

SCPs are boring these days, every SCP now is just an thinly-veiled power fantasy, none of the new ones are even remotely scary. OC SCPs are even worse, they're extremely cringe.
