A PMT esoteric Black Providence-influenced crypto-dictatorship situated in a world shattered by nuclear war and decline of imperialism. The nation is striving towards an eventual balance of the people's will and the nation's order, but also withdrawing away into a state of semi-isolation. Third-way economy backed by subsidized corporations, nationwide public surveillance and zealous state worship -- Dozdcheny is run by a faceless, nameless High Inspector, himself a social experiment with a goal to reject humanly fallacies. | OOC: Belarus of Zitravgrad's canon. However, after seeing you two it is nice to see that not all siblings fight each other to gain the throne, but instead they share it which has my respect. I also love their 'Sweet Relief Law' it is always important to care of the sick, the elderly, and the poor which will help the Twin Queens gain popularity with their people.  Now I don't claim to be a masterful sage of politics, I mean my experiences are still lacking and that's quite obvious. But for someone who is supposedly in charge of a big, strategically positioned country, so far I have personally found Mrs. Proulx to be... somewhat naïve. I mean - I shouldn't judge a book by its cover, sure. But she's sitting on top of a fuck ton of oil! That's power, power to do something strategic and long-term. Is squabbling on cliché, trivial (well, at least in my opinion) partisan topics really the best thing that she can come up with?

Then again, it's not like she's a bad leader - she's OK for a pretty standard politician, and waaay better than the rats around me. And maybe I'm biased due to my negative opinions on her background and relative inexperience (at least for my standard). Her healthcare policies is a big plus though, probably thanks to the sweet sweet Black Gold. Overall, she didn't really make that much of an impression, good or bad.
