The Capuchin Polity begins large-scale colonization of their portion of the Asteroid Belt, as well as the Kuiper Belt, in a program known as the Green Belts Initiative.

Bad times have fallen upon the Earth Coalition. With some member nations withdrawing support due to the war turning away from their favor, and the new CCA-built laser cannons aiming at Luna, surrender is imminent.

With these new developments, the original capuchin decides to go on a visit to the newly re-freed Republic of Hawai'i in a show of comradery between the Martian Catgirl Republic and the Capuchin Polity. During the tour, a ball is held in the capital of Honolulu, open to any world leaders friendly to the CCA. Bananas are complimentary, and the capuchin will be attending in a dapper suit.

The capuchin chitters while holding a foam hammer, raising a small furry eyebrow. He also greets the ambassador of the TRC and welcomes him to the Honolulu Ball.

300 sentient burritos from a mysterious cavern originating from northern Canada arrive at the ball. This causes confusion amongst the guests of the ball on how the burritos are even sentient.

The Honolulu Ball has concluded with many illustrious leaders attending. The banana shipments have all but disappeared, and the capuchin heads back to Ceres.

Soon, the Earth Coalition surrenders to the CCA alliance, much to the jubilation of both nations. Celebrations erupt in major cities and asteroids in the Catgirl Republic and the Capuchin Polity, lasting nearly two weeks.

The first of the CCA's BCSD ships reach Proxima Centauri, and create a joint colonization effort on Proxima b.

An embassy request is also sent to the Gerbil Empire, with a massive shipping crate of baby carrots as an accompanying gift.
