They are a nation in 10,000 islands and they are a unitary parliamentary constitutional monarchy. It seems that they are another PMT nation with an advanced space program with cutting-edge spacecraft and a base on Callisto. Their army has 450,000 soldiers and they seem to exist in a world where Maxtopia also exists. Also, they have no national color.

Their nation is simultaneously Marxist and Monarchist, which is an oxymoron that I can only begin to imagine how they (ICly) justify, and has had a long history of human rights abuses, authoritarianism, and is a dictatorship with a cult of personality. Much like another Marxist-Leninist state, their leader has a cult of personality around them

The idea of Coryanhafflauda started as a single planet, but eventually stretched out to multiple universes. The durability of this nation is astonishing. It's like if Rome (which was originally a city) survived everything that was thrown at them and became a galactic power.

That they have diseased people that should be on their deathbeds out in the military; however, it works to their advantage, as the disease mineralizes much of the body of the infected, thus strengthening them.
