"I'm pretty sure that Shioris is protecting civilization, fighting against primitivists and industrializing his nation and all that. Then again, his civilization is a totalitarian state that oppresses its people, but I'm just being technical here.

Oh wait, I'm supposed to put in my opinion of YOU. Well, besides you being a dumb bitch with an eye disorder, I don't really have a problem with you. I think 'traditional values' are lame. I mean, traditions and culture is important, but this nuclear family crap is more of a product of the Industrial Revolution and Post-WW2 prosperity. Before that, extended families were the norm. Really, 'family values' people have a stick up their asses.

And, honestly, Czechoeuropa isn't even a real nation. Czechs are, but Czechoeuropa is fake. It's like being an Austro-Hungarian 'nationalist'. You're not a real nationalist, you're a loyalist for what is essentially a multi-ethnic military junta. Really, I'm surprised that your nation didn't completely collapse. Same for the other countries in your version of Europe. Seriously, what happened to all the different nationalisms?

The one positive I do have to give to you is that you at least account for the people. Teaching the people the virtues of citizenship through military service is a honorable pursuit and one that I personally commend."

"Huh? Two queens? Well, fuck, that means we'd need an extra guillotine. HAH-AHAHA! I thought it was funny. Anyways, besides being royalist dipshits, the elf queens oddly took up the same administrative practices as the Nazi regime back in the 20th century. The entire government is filled with sycophants, competing for their favor. Wait, is that a Swatiska? Are they actually... Elvish Nazis? The fuck? Well, I guess they're not a threat since they're not in Europe.

I really prefer Tolkien's elves to these... creatures. Like seriously, they have no room for creativity and the arts? They live like ants? It's honestly disgusting and almost like what people like Zima and the folks from the Pre-War days thought Communism was like.

But, it's really not worth fighting a war against them for. Really, the only issue I have with them is that their population is out of control. Unless they birth control themselves, we might have to prevent them from coming to our world in case they consume whatever resources are left. That is probably the one time I'd consider the nuclear option. Jesus, can't believe I just said that."

Though we don’t have much care for economics we can see that it works for his nation and we also admire his transhumanist policies as from what we can understand it would be through technology doing the assimilation for us...but we must say his choice of hair is quite lackluster. Upon first viewing, we could not tell if this organic was male or female because of the hair. Haha! Such an inconsequential thing does not change our positive overall opinion”

"Why do I get the feeling that I've read this? Several times, in fact? No, really, I swear - this exact same biography, or something very similar to it. Strange... in any case, there really isn't much to glean here. His personal background is rather mundane, and the only two defining features I can really find here are his homosexuality and his apolitical stance. If I'm being perfectly honest, this is an utterly abhorrent dossier. Where he wants to stick his genitals is entirely inconsequential - what really frustrates me is his passivity. Yes, I welcome apoliticality. Ideologues tend towards inefficiency, after all. But this is... utter inaction! It is inefficiency at its peak - a ceremonial figure, whose actual functional duties could well be filled by a simple clerk! His office is pointless, and he himself is a blip - a speck of dirt in the grand scheme of things. I cannot give my opinion on him as a ruler, because he isn't one. As a person? He is worthless."

"I admire Qachuynia's democracy, or 'demarchy'. It has many of the positive features of Athenian democracy. However, I do think that urban areas have too much power in their Confederacy, and the executive should be collective and powerless to prevent the same concentration of power you see in Pre-War America. Most local governments have demarchic positions in the RCAS, though I don't know how Qachuynia pulls it off on the confederal level. They have an entire star system, and surely citizens don't want their lives suddenly disrupted by being granted governmental position.

Besides that, I think Warsiya is repeating some of Pre-War America's mistakes ironically. Internationalist intervention for ideological reasons was what led our nation to atomic amageddon, and so I recommend that you instead focus on the interests of your nation first.

Despite our similarities, I have a strange inkling that tells me that he would despise me. Like really despise me. For the whole 'racism' thing."

You have provided and gave so much for the people, and I am sure that they are very thankful with you around! I wonder if I should spin this to be my next news-piece! I mean, provided that you don't mind, of course! I got a couple of interview questions that I have already prepared here! Err... I might need to translate it if you cannot read Korean Shorthand! Anyway, I am very, very positive on you! □□□□□ (Greetings to you), from Valentine Z!

Out of all things, you not only didn't pay attention to Head Diplomat Charlene, which can be found by clicking on the link... you powerwanked on us and underestimated the forces. Sure, we aren't unstoppable, but there's a lot more to things than pure numbers.

Rookie mistake: Missed attention to details. Some "writer", that is.
